HECTIC SCHEDULES DON'T leave much time for meals. A quick lunch on the library steps is better than none at all.

PART OF ORIENTATION is finding your own style of recreation. Sharon Gardner, Diana Stotser, and Linda Preston found that playing cards is a good way to spend an afternoon.

orientation, friendships, and relationships

Moving into the dorm, meeting with advisors and registering for classes are all places where we meet new friends.

This fall our enrollment increased 3.5 percent over last year, representing the highest increase in the State University and Community College System. Although we came from many diverse backgrounds, experiences, and localities we soon found ourselves on common grounds — ETSU.

After rushing around to get the instructors wanted and the classes required, we were off. Day in and day out we went to our classes, took notes, studied for tests, worked on homework assignments, wrote papers, and somehow found time to make friends. Sometimes it was the person sitting next to you in class, who was continually late, or the person down the hall in the dorm that kept asking to borrow your clothes. Maybe it was the commuter student who fell asleep at the stop sign and rear-ended your car.

We spent hours on end together in the library studying — socializing with the heat set on 98 degrees. We walked the long walks and grass paths from Davis Apartments to the intramural fields together. As time passed our circle of friends increased. We also began to take bits of ETSU home to our families and friends on our frequent weekend laundry trips. Sometimes we took our roommate home with us, especially if he was a long way from home.

Some of us are not altogether familiar with everything that happens at ETSU, because we arrive at seven or eight a.m., sit through our classes, study and research in the library, eat a meal or two in the cafeteria and return home. Some of our commuters travel long distances while others only walk down the street.

The important factor is that no matter who we are, where we came from, how we get here or how much we are involved, we are a part of ETSU 1982. Our friendships and relationships will last in our minds along with square roots, and debits and credits, lines per inch and Bayes theorem. After all, we are here to learn not only about theories and applications but about people and relationships.

classes, schedules, and professors

Those of us who were here during the quarter system remember the old days when there were only 10 weeks instead of 15, when comprehensive testing was optional and term papers were only given in upper division classes. Well, now we have semesters and nothing has really changed except for the amount of time and the number of credits required for graduation.

One thing that was instituted this year that is projected to have a great influence on the future growth and expansion of ETSU is the formation of the Honors program. Discussion and preliminary plans are now underway for a coed dorm to be built to house honor students. Also along these lines is the announcement of the addition of admission requirements of a 2.0 composite average from high school or a composite score of 17 on the American College Testing Program (ACT) or a comparable score on the SAT test to be instituted beginning with 1982 entering freshmen.

Changing from quarters to semesters last fall left many professors, instructors and especially students wondering what was going on, in spite of the recommended pre-advisement and planning. Classes were combined and classes required for both general core and for majors and minors changed drastically. Sometimes there was a change in catalog numbers or course names, and inevitably the class schedule and the new semester catalog reached conflicting numbers for many classes.

Schedules were even more of a problem than ever, mostly for upper level students since general core requirements are offered throughout the year. Many upper division students found that required classes were offered only once a year or once every two years. This requires pre-planning and advisement early in our college careers.

The culmination of every student's college career is graduation. This fall we soon heard rumors of Dr. Beller's proposal to hold one spring graduation per year. This immediately brought protests from both students and parents who were enraged by the proposal of holding diplomas until spring for students who completed their graduation requirements in the summer or fall semesters. Reasons given for the proposed change were poor turnouts for these two commencements and the need to rechannel the funds spent on three graduation ceremonies into one large ceremony with a reknowned speaker. The proposal was quickly tabled until it could be studied by the Student Government Association and a student poll could be taken.

While we are oriented to many outside factors of life while in college, our primary goal is to work toward a degree. While we each work in different directions, we share ETSU together.

competition, championships, and recreation

Controversy is the word to describe ETSU's entry into the Southern Conference three years ago. Students, faculty, administration and alumni alike wondered how the Bucs could possibly compete in a conference with such prestigious schools as The Citadel, Furman, Marshall, and UT-Chattanooga.

This past year should have been enough proof that ETSU can compete and even excel. The University's athletic program finished second in the All-Sports Commissioner's Cup for best overall program in the Southern Conference.

The rifle team placed third in the NCAA championship, with three members on the All-American team and six on the All-Conference team. The baseball team ranked fifteenth in NCAA Division I, reached the playoffs in the NCAA Atlantic Regionals, beating Clemson in the playoff eliminations. The baseball team won the Southern Conference championship and had a 44-game winning season for ETSU. The men's basketball team finished fourth in the Southern Conference with the women's basketball team winning the ETSU Christmas Tournament and finishing second in the TCWSF state basketball tournament (women's conference). The tennis team placed first in the Southern Conference tennis doubles, and two team members were picked for All-Conference.

The golf team won the conference championship, the Marshall Intercollegiate Tournament and the Avatar Intercollegiate Tournament. The men's volleyball team was best in the Southern Conference; the women's gymnastics team qualified for AIAW Southern Regional Championship; and one of the football team members was selected for the All-American team.

The track team earned more than its share of awards: ETSU's Cross Country team was fourth in the NCAA championship with two members on the All-American team, ranked fourth in the NCAA in a poll covering successful teams over a ten-year period, qualified one female for the AIAW Nationals, won the District III NCAA championship with six members on the All-Conference team, and had an undefeated season. The indoor track team qualified three males for NCAA Nationals; four members made the All-Conference team and state track championship.

Coach-of-the-Year awards were won in cross country for NCAA District III and in the Southern Conference for cross country, indoor track and golf.

After only the third year in the Southern Conference, we have a rather impressive record — one deserving of our support and pride in the athletic program.

THE BUCCANEER FOOTBALL team had a winning season during 1981. This completed pass was just one of the plays that led to victory over Western Carolina.

THE BUCCANEER BASEBALL team was fifteenth in NCAA Division 1, reached the play-offs in the NCAA Atlantic Regional, won the Southern Conference championship, and had the first 44-game winning season for the University during their 1981 season.

administration,

deans,

and students

Dr. Ronald Beller, who took office in October a year ago committed himself and the University to "a redirection of the University's primary mission of serving the region."

After studying the University in the areas of administration and student relations, many changes have been implemented to redirect ETSU.

Since Beller's arrival the position of Vice President of Finance and Administration has been added, as well as changes in the deans of the Colleges of Education, Business, and Medicine and there were changes in the directors of the Kingsport University Center, Athletic Department, Development and Alumni Affairs. Another change occurred with the arrival of Beller's executive liaison, Dr. David Tiffany, whose job is to coordinate university advancement. Other positions open at the beginning of fall semester were dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and dean of the College of Allied Health. A search for replacements for these two positions along with that of the Vice President of Academic Affairs continued throughout the fall.

Taking into account all the changes in administrative personnel and the 3.5 percent increase in enrollment despite the 23 percent increase in tuition, ETSU is on the way up.

This year also marks the first graduating class of the Quillen-Dishner College of Medicine. These 23 students have completed their two years of class work plus two years of clinical work in area hospitals. Medical students are very proud to be a part of the ETSU family, but because of their heavy academic load and other requirements, they are rarely seen outside the Med School buildings.

1982 marked a redirection of the Student Government Association. Many new goals were set by SGA President Jeff Anderson, who saw the beginning of Bill 606 loans and grants along with a new commuter service being installed in the post office. Homecoming was sponsored by SGA with the theme of "Homecoming is as American as Hot Dogs, Football, Buccaneers and Halloween." The traditional downtown parade was replaced by on-campus displays and on-campus activities.

SETTLING DOWN

Entering college is one of the turning points in a person's life. The following articles relate some of the first impressions of incoming freshmen . . .

Say Cheese, Please!

Before freshman orientation, I had heard that you did not have time to comb your hair or fix your make-up before your I.D. picture was made. It was described as a come in, sit down, smile situation. In my case it was quite that way.

So I went in, sat down, and smiled. I was extremely nervous. After the picture was taken, I took my place in line with the other freshman students. After waiting approximately ten minutes, the photographer asked me to come back and have my picture made again. He explained that the camera had not worked correctly.

This time I was more relaxed, but a little embarrassed because all of the student photographers were laughing and saying that he had done it on purpose. Ten minutes later, I was asked to sit for my picture once again. By now I was totally relaxed and blood red in the face. Needless to say, this made a real natural picture. If it is possible to break the camera by merely looking at it, then I must have made a record by doing it twice in one day. I must add that after all I went through I wasn't very pleased with my final picture. I really cannot complain because it was no one's fault but my own; after all, I did have three chances.

ORIENTATION CAMPUS LIFE

Campus life is very different from living at home and going to high school. When I first arrived on campus, my heart started beating faster, and I realized for the first time that I missed feeling the security of home. I soon realized that I had taken for granted my parents always being there when I needed them. I also felt that I had pushed away to start a new life for myself and to come across new experiences, whether good or bad. In this respect, living on campus has given me my first taste of adulthood.

In high school I knew almost everyone, but it usually takes a couple of months to meet people in college because of the large number of students. It also took me a couple of weeks to become adjusted to the big change in life style. But after that things started to become very routine. I like the class schedule better than in high school, because I get out of classes earlier, and I have time for more activities in the afternoon.

It took a while to get used to the independence of college life, but I know now that my decisions and experiences are very important and that I like the new sense of freedom. I also feel that college makes a person more mature and definitely helps one to prepare for the future.

Becca Carter

The first week on campus was the most terrifying time in my life. Starting school sure seemed fast to me. Summer was over, and here I was alone in my room.

Panic had struck me because I knew I was here and didn't know anyone. I was all alone in this strange place.

I didn't know where the buildings were or my classes, so I went and looked for them.

I felt so different being on my own and finding things for myself.

Moving into the dorm took me almost three hours. I tried to make the room look like my room at home. Getting used to the room and being there with another person seemed impossible.

There were so many things to do at the same time, I really thought I couldn't make it.

Everybody had told me how hard it was in college, I was totally scared to death to start.

I went to my classes and everything worked out fine. I found out it really wasn't so bad after all.

The first week was hectic but I made it. And now everything is running smoothly.

I will always remember the first week though because it was the first step to a new life.

WHERE DID ALL

By Carl Forester
Staff Writer

Wait a minute! It's time to sit down and look where our money is going.

Tuition for 9,472 students, as we are all painfully aware, went up some 23% for in-state students, and more for out-of-state students. The registration fee for Tennessee residents for 1980 for 12 semester hours or more was $246 compared to $357 this fall. Out-of-state tuition in 1980 was $747 compared to $765 this fall. Added to the tuition of $765 was a registration fee of $357, bringing the total for out-of-state students to $1,122.

Housing in one of over 14 residence halls cost from $250 to $337 as we returned this fall. We also paid $390/semester for rent in our two apartment-style dorms. Married student housing and the new graduate student apartments in the basement of Carter Hall ranged between $120 to $145 per month. Added to the rent for all these types of housing was a telephone charge of $35 per semester, where phones were available

Then there is Off-campus housing, either in rooming houses or apartments. Rooming houses ranged from $30 to $50 per month, while apartments ranged from $75 to $300 per month, depending on size and lushness.

Meals still seem to be a bargain in our university cafeterias and restaurants. For the 21-meals-per-week (seven breakfasts, lunches and dinners, or 297 meals per semester), we paid $412.41 per semester. That's an average cost of $1.39 per meal. Remember, if we are eating in the boarding cafetria that's all-you-can-eat. For the 15-meal plan (five breakfasts, lunches, and dinners), we paid $387.73 for 211 meals per semester. That is $1.83/meal on the average. On the 10-meal plan, we received any 10 meals during seven days for a semester cost of $355.99 (142 meals per semester). That's an average cost per meal of $2.51.

Tuition up 23 percent

AS EVERYONE KNOWS bills must be paid by September 7 or late fees will be imposed. Remember the lines in the Business Office on the seventh.

INCREASING INFLATION CAUSED a rise in many areas of student life, but ARA Food Service still seemed to offer good food at fair cost.

For those students who chose not to purchase a meal plan, the cost was $1.70 for breakfast, $2.40 for lunch and dinner, and $3.50 for special meals in the boarding line. Other campus facilities charge more for specialty item menus.

By buying a meal ticket, we should be able to save the equivalent of $231.00/semester, or as our ARA food service says, the equivalent of:

- 75 six packs of your favorite recreational beverage
- 10.5 pink Izod shirts, including 6% sales tax
- Books and supplies for one year
- or an extravaganza excursion to Lizard Lick, Tn.

Buying books is always an easy way to spend large amounts of money. The buy-back policy is still in force at a little more than one half the value for those books which will be used next time; that is, if there isn't already a surplus of them on hand.

We also paid $3 per semester for a post office box so we could receive letters from home, overdrawn notices from the bank, and junk mail.

We also paid a $2 picture fee to have our pictures put in the yearbook. Speaking of the student publications, we received 30 copies of the East Tennessean newspaper per semester and a copy of the BUCCANEER yearbook, both of which are included in maintenance fees.

THE FASHION SCENE at ETSU this year included the Prepple look. This style of dress features plaids, button-downs and blazers such as those worn by these students.

CASUAL, BUT COMFORTABLE. T-Shirts and jeans are always in style on campus.

DRESSING UP — ETSU STYLE . . .

By Mary Pat Buchanan

Preppy, western, and punk. All these words have to do with the world of fashion and examples of such fashions can be seen all over campus.

Prep fashions are loved by many and hated by just as many. Students who love the preppy style like it for its classic, clean-cut look. Preppy clothes never go out of style, are a good investment and can be worn for years. Avid prep dressers love catalogs from Talbort's, L.L. Beane and Brook Brothers. Preppy shops locally are Dardens and Pappagallo. From these sources one can find all sorts of madris (plaid) clothing, everything in pink and green (two of prep's favorite colors), blazers, skirts, buttondown (cotton) shirts, matching watchbands and pocketbook covers (Banner House, of course). All these items are important to a preppy wardrobe. Extras include cardigan sweaters, penny loafers, duck shoes in a rainbow of colors, Jacques Cones espridralles, Polo and Izod shirts, and anything with the duck motif on it which also includes pants and eyeglass cases.

The preppy fashion has caused such a rage across the country over the past few years that books have been written for preps. The Official Preppy Handbook has sold over 800,000 copies. The handbook tells not only how to dress preppy, but also how to talk and drink preppy. It lists all the prep schools one can attend, and even where to vacation.

Also sweeping the nation is the western style in fashion. This style became highly popular after the movie "Urban Cowboy" and the television show "Dallas." Soon after the release of the movie and popularity of the show it seemed as if everyone was in a hurry to be the first on the block with a $125 Stetson cowboy hat, lizard-skin boots, and suede and leather fringed coats and pants. Jeans, which are a perennial fashion became more popular. Bandanas and checkered shirts with "pearl" buttons are also favorites of the western dresser.

Punk rock music, also called new wave music, incited a third fashion movement. Tight pants with 3" high-heel spiked shoes, torn t-shirts held together with safety pins, leopard-skin clothing, chains used as belts and necklaces, and the revival of the short-short mini skirt are all included in the punker's wardrobe. Basically anything that looks wild or different and catches the eye is what a punk dresser wears. Unconventionally dyed hair accessorizes the punk dresser's attire. Colors such as electric blue, green, bright pink, and even purple appear on punk heads. Safety pins not only hold torn t-shirts together but are also worn as earrings and nose-rings.

The punk dressers, like the preppies and western dresser, follow a distinctive type of lifestyle. Music by the B-52's, Devo, The Talking Heads and the Busboys are some favorites of most punkers. Some punkers also enjoy dances. Their speech may be characterized by short, to-the-point sentences.

There are many different types of fashion in today's ever changing world, but these three seem to be the most prominent. Basic jeans and t-shirts, shorts, tennis shoes, and sweat suits continue to be wardrobe staples.

When gray clouds decide to come out and shed some rain, a new type of fashion also comes out: umbrellas, raincoats, rainshoes and rainhats. But umbrellas aren't the basic black anymore; raincoats aren't dull coats, and rainshoes have come along way from the galoshes one used to try to lose in the coat closet at elementary school.

Rainwear fashion has "come a long way, baby." Now one has a hard time deciding whether to buy the that can fold up into a self-contained pouch is popular, but these coats are more for fashion and looks than for keeping dry. Then there are the slickers that come in all sorts of colors and lengths ranging from the waist to the knees. Most slickers have hoods to keep the head dry, and they are very fashion coordinated since most are reversible. Finally there is the so-called "spy" or "Columbo" raincoat, the khaki knee-length classic coat that is also worn when the sun is out but the weather is cool.

Sometimes one might think that if the head and body are dry, everything is fine and dandy, but that is not necessarily true. The feet also have to be considered when jumping from mud-puddle across campus. Rubber soles are usually one's best bet in rain footwear, but tennis shoes are out, for canvas doesn't keep toes very dry. A new rain shoe is the "duck shoe" which can be coordinated with the rain coat and umbrella, since "duck shoes" come in all colors. Duck shoes have practically replaced the old rubber galoshes worn over regular street shoes.

And when one hasn't invested in good rainwear, sometimes a newspaper or books held over the head will do just as well in a little sprinkle.

BEHIND CLOSED DOORS . . .

Tanya Green, Staff

Dorm life — new, exciting, an adventure — that is for the freshman. He or she is finally away from home, on his or her own, surrounded by new people, new faces and new happenings.

ETSU has nine women's dormitories and five men's dormitories. Both men and women can choose to live in efficiency apartments located on campus.

When a freshman first moves to a dorm he or she is bombarded with new rules and regulations, some of which seem quite outdated.

The women's dorms are all locked after 12 a.m. during the week and after 2 a.m. on weekends. Most of the dorms do have combination locks now, so the women do not have to wait on a policeman to let them in. Men's dorms are not locked.

Aside from the rules and regulations, dorm life can be a very exciting experience. A person is bound to meet new friends, learn of other cultures and ideas from the surrounding rooms.

And, there is always someone nearby who will listen when you just need someone to talk to when you feel the whole world has deserted you.

Dorm life has its bad points, but considering the cost and the convenience it is still a very good deal. For new people just moving to the area with relatively no friends, the dorm is a good place to begin.

Old Lady Carter Gets A

By Tammy Kooch
Staff Writer

The campus presented a new face to returning students in 1981.

Dorm renovations were the main improvement on campus as both Cooper and Carter halls had extensive work done.

Carter Hall received a major facelift while it was closed for over a year. Built in 1911, this dorm is a major part of the tradition and history at ETSU. Included in the renovation were completely new electrical wiring, plumbing, roofing, windows, heating, air conditioning and a fire alarm system. Another major part of the renovation was the conversion of basement storage space into apartments for graduate students.

The more cosmetic work included carpeting, phones and repainting. A special lift was installed and living space was converted to accomodate handicapped residents.

When students moved in at the beginning of the semester however, a few wrinkles still remained. Maintenance was kept busy for several weeks installing doorknobs, unstopping sinks, repairing air-conditioning and putting on the "finishing touches."

After a few weeks most of the wrinkles were gone but two reminders of the need for closer attention to details remained.

A mixup resulted in carpeting being placed over the antique floor in the lobby and the trim in the rooms were painted steel gray, which clashed with the brown carpet.

Even so, the "Old Lady" of the campus is a much more pleasant place to live than before as a result of all the hard work that went into the renovation.

Cooper Hall received less extensive repair work which included air-conditioning, ventilation in the showers, fire alarms, phones and minor work on the heating and electrical systems.

Several other dorms were repainted and campus-wide landscaping added to the beauty of the campus for the 1981-82 school year.

THE RUSH ABOUT?

By Mary Pat Buchanan
Staff Writer

Gatoring, cold brew on tap at the bar and rock-n-roll music are all a part of fraternity life, especially during Fraternity Rush. All of the thirteen fraternities, which are supervised by the Inter-Fraternity Council, held rush for prospective new members during the first week back on campus. The Fraternities on campus are: Kappa Alpha, Kappa Alpha Psi, Kappa Sigma, Lamda Chi Alpha, Phi Sigma Kappa, Pi Kappa Alpha, Pi Kappa Phi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Sigma Chi, Sigma Nu, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Omega Psi Phi, and Tau Kappa Epsilon.

After scheduling and rescheduling classes, standing in drop-add and fee lines, trampling across campus from one advisor to another, most students were ready to party hearty at night to unwind from the days traumatic experiences. Some students found relaxation in their own dorm rooms or apartments sipping on some "cool ones" with just a couple of friends, while others enjoyed hitting all the fraternity houses seeing old friends and meeting new ones, dancing, and drinking with a crowd.

Members of the fraternities had been planning for Rush Week long before the hectic week began. Many brothers had to return to school several weeks before classes for a week of work. During this week, brothers painted, mowed and trimmed yards of the houses and basically prepared everyone for rushing prospective pledges, or associates. Posters and flyers to advertise the parties also had to be placed and distributed all over campus. Kegs of beer had to be ordered. Music and sound systems had to be arranged. So by the time the first person arrived at the fraternity house, everything was "just right."

If a young man was interested in going through Fraternity Rush, he paid a fee of $3.00 at the first fraternity house he chose to visit. In return he received a receipt and all the beer he could drink. After leaving one house to attend another, all he had to do was show the receipt that was paid earlier.

Some guys just enjoy going to the fraternity houses for the cold beer and fun, while others are thinking about pledging but want to know a little more about the Greek life. For these young men there are the brothers of the fraternity to talk to and get all the background needed. The main brother behind Rush is the Rush Chairman, who talks to prospective pledges. Then the brothers hold bid sessions and extend invitations to interested men whom brothers think would be an asset to the fraternity.

Rush Week is just about the most important week of the year for a fraternity, for Rush is the lifeblood of the fraternity.

Rush Week for the five Sororities on campus, Alpha Delta Pi, Kappa Delta, Delta Zeta, Sigma Kappa, and Phi Mu, all supervised by Panhellenic, is also important, for it too is the lifeblood of the sorority.

Rush Week is usually held the second week of school and is quite different from Fraternity Rush held the week before.

About the same pre-rush preparations that went on before Fraternity Rush take place also for the Sorority Rush. Some things, however, are different. Instead of rock-n-roll music, skits and songs are practiced by the girls of the sorority for hours upon hours, weeks in advance. Rather than beer being served, punch and cookies are served at sorority parties.

Girls who wish to go through Sorority Rush must register the first week of school, pay a rush fee of $8.00 to the Panhellenic Council, and be assigned to a rush group. The rush group is headed by a rush counselor called a Rho Chi. The Rho Chi's are chosen by Panhellenic on the basis of leadership and scholarship. Their job is to advise the rushees during the week of rush and to be neutral towards all the sororities.

An open-house is set up at the first of the week to give the rushees a casual glance at all the sorority suites and to get Rush Week rolling. The following night parties are held by each sorority and all the rushees get to meet the sisters of the sorority. That same night after all the parties are over, the rushees meet with their rush counselors and eliminate the sorority that they weren't particularly interested in. This leaves four sorority parties for the rushee to attend the next night. This process of cutting a sorority is followed every night all week long until only two are left. Once down to two sororities (by Friday) the rushee attends two Preferential Parties. Preferential Parties are the most beautiful and serious of the whole week. The Pref Party is also when the hard-rushing is done by the sisters of the sorority, for the girls attending this party could be future sisters of the sorority.

After Preferential Parties, the rushees sign a card with the sorority they feel most at home with and want to be a part of. Then comes the waiting. The rushees have to wait to see if they get the sorority of their first choice (for two are chosen), and the sisters have to wait to see if the girls they wanted chose their sorority. These questions are answered Saturday morning when the rushee picks up a bid of invitation by a sorority. Then the excited rushees proceed to the Candlelight Service where they pledge themselves to Panhellenic. The rushees know which sorority they pledged, but the members still don't know the answers to their question. The members find out after the new pledges walk through the door. It is all an exciting and tension-building process.

Fraternity Rush and Sorority Rush differ in many ways, yet both have the same goal: to encourage young men and women to pledge themselves to a fraternity or sorority where they can better themselves and become part of a family that will continue for a lifetime.

YELLOW JACKETS, TALL GRASS AND ARA CUISINE UNDER THE TREES

By Mary Pat Buchanan
Staff Writer

A beautiful, sunny afternoon with yellow jackets flitting through the tall grass and bluegrass music drifting in the background, set the scene for a cookout, held during the first week of school. The cookout, sponsored by the University Center Program Committee (UCPC) and Student Government Association (SGA) and catered by ARA, brought many students out from unpacking boxes and suitcases for an afternoon of good eating and socializing.

The UCPC along with the Student Government Association wanted to give new and returning students a chance to meet each other and relax, while introducing themselves and letting the students know that the Student Government was on campus to help them. Jeff Anderson, President of SGA, attended the event along with Clyde Boone, Vice-President of SGA, and other members of Student Government. Dr. Ron Beller, President of ETSU, was also on the scene to introduce himself and welcome everyone who came out.

A good crowd was on hand to sit and enjoy listening to bluegrass music provided by the Buffalo Chipkickers.

All in all, the cookout was a success and all seemed to enjoy themselves thoroughly.

JUST LIKE MOMS HOME COOKING

By Mary Pat Buchanan
Staff Writer

The food here on campus to most students is about as exciting as watching corn grow.

As always, students constantly complain about the food served by the four eating spots, the Rathskeller (better known as "the Rat"), Fast Foods, the All-You-Can-Eat cafeteria, and the a la carte cafeteria, all located in the student center. It is an everyday conversation to most students to talk about how the gravy tastes like water, the hamburgers have too much soybean filler, or the pressed turkey has too much fat. Most of the time students cannot think of anything else to talk about while conversing over a meal, so complaining about the food becomes major conversation.

However, the food is provided by the American Restaurant Association (ARA) and they do everything possible to prepare a meal "just like mom cooks". But "mom" usually doesn't have to cook three meals a day for 1,000 people or more every day.

ARA is working for and with the students by providing a survey for students to express their complaints and suggestions on how to improve the quality of the food being served.

With four possible places to eat on campus, one should be able to like something on the menu. The Rathskeller offers hamburgers, hot dogs, sandwiches, even bagles with cream cheese and sometimes live entertainment for the students. The fast foods grill serves hamburgers, pizzas, and provides jukebox music for one's listening pleasure. The cafeteria offers sandwiches plus meats and vegetables for a well-balanced meal. An addition to the menu here that seems to be popular is the baked potato with a choice of several sauces and toppings. At the a la carte cafeteria, the hearty, hungry eater can get all the seconds and thirds he likes at a fixed price.

Sometimes ARA has special "Pizza Nights," "Hoagie Nights" or even "Steak Nights," where one can eat all he can on these fixed menu nights.

The Rathskeller, which stays open till 9:00 p.m., offers a Coffee House with live entertainment, and sometimes big screen television is set up for major sporting events such as the World Series. Popcorn is also sold.

Also sponsored by ARA are hamburger and hot dog cookouts outside in the amphitheater.

Still, if one is totally against buying a meal ticket or just tired of the same 'ole food, he can patronize many of the fast-food and dining spots near campus.

A NEW CIRCLE OF FRIENDS . . .

By Carl Forester
Staff Writer

Going to college gives you a whole new world of experiences. You arrive in a totally strange environment of people, policies, professors and problems. Within a couple of weeks you have made new friendships and relationships.

Even for people who have trouble talking to other people, new friendships are inevitable, whether it be with the person who lives next door in the dorm, the person in front of you in line, or the person who has blocked you in the parking lot.

It usually takes a while to get used to visitation rules, and the fact that you can arrange your day almost anyway you want. Inevitably there will always be one class that is only offered one time a year or only one period a semester.

Then after you have made it through the readjustment time and begin making contacts and friendships, you begin to look for relationships with people of the opposite sex.

It might be someone you met in class, in the registration line, or maybe the person you ran over on your way to class. Nevertheless, contacts are made. But being disorganized in the first few weeks of school, and striving to meet all the requirements of your student manual and the new peer group, you sometimes temporarily forget your social obligations.

Like, remember the time you were supposed to have been in the library at 10 a.m. to meet the girl from your English Composition class to help her write an essay due for class at 11:15 that day. You overslept, woke up, and went straight to class. Of course she never spoke to you again.

Or remember the time you waited for weeks, just to go out with this really good looking girl. And then the night finally came. Your car broke down on the way to her house. You arrived twenty-five minutes late with grease all over your hands and your wheat-colored jeans. She laughed when she realized why you were late. After you cleaned up, you were off, but she certainly wasn't. She talked continuously all night. After ten minutes you had the worst headache ever. Needless to say, you didn't have a great time, and you made it a point to not ask her out again.

Then there was the time you made two dates for the same night. There you were in your dorm room getting ready for your date, telling your roommate about this really good looking girl, the girl of your dreams. And your roommate tells you that Carol called while you were in the shower and wanted to know what time you were picking her up. Carol is your old steady girlfriend, and she's not the girl you were planning to take out tonight.

There was the time you were sitting in your dorm room relaxing, listening to loud stereo music, and the phone rang. You were so engrossed in the music, you answered it on the sixth ring. To your surprise, it was a girl you met last week in Biology Class. She says, "Hey, what are you doing?" You say, "Nothing, just getting ready to go eat in the cafeteria."

She says, "Why don't you come over and pick me up? You're only thirty minutes late for our date."

Well, we all get our wires crossed once in a while. Some people have this kind of luck all the time. College isn't always this mixed up. Sometimes we actually have time to write home for money, or call home and run the long-distance bill up. We have come from many diverse backgrounds, and we strive for many different goals in our college careers and our lives. But we all share our time, friendships, and relationships here at ETSU.

PATRICK COONE AND Marla Bohlander share some time in front of McCord Hall.

GAMES PEOPLE PLAY

Space invaders, star wars, astroids, baseball, football, fooseball, pool, air hockey and the list goes on and on.

Electronic games seem to have captured the imagination of young and old in 1981, and some may wonder if this has happened at the expense of traditional activity sports.

Almost any bar, any large mall, even campuses have these time consuming, mind-boggling games. Video game centers are usually full of people at any given time, but . . .

Walking around campus and driving down "tree streets", one can see that Johnson Citians are able to use more than just their hands to play games.

People still play old fashioned football, basketball and softball. The good ol' American frisbee still flies high, and games like soccer and kaki sak are beginning to nudge into the physical game field.

Winter weather brought people out to go sledding tubing and skiing, to build snowmen and have snowball fights. Summertime activities are still dominated by swimming, tennis, bicycling, and other outdoor pursuits.

Of course, the video games have a strong hold in our society, but physical games are still alive and well.

ON THE ROAD AGAIN

By Mary Pat Buchanan
Staff Writer

Walking back to the dorm after your last class, you might notice that there are less people walking around and now would be a great time to find an empty parking place. You reach your dorm room to find your roommate borrowing your clothes and packing them in his suitcase. You ask what he's doing. The reply is "I'm packing to go home." Suddenly you remember today is Friday. And almost everybody leaves campus each weekend and the place becomes deserted.

East Tennessee State University has the well known reputation as being a "suitcase college," which means that most students pack suitcases Friday afternoon, leave campus and return late Sunday night or Monday morning. This process is repeated by almost everybody at least once or twice a month, because they find more excitment elsewhere. Johnson City is not the hottest place around.

But where do students trek off to with their suitcases, dirty clothes, and sometimes even books?

Some go home to get dirty clothes washed, and a good home-cooked meal by Mom. Others head home with friends, while still others head to big K.Town. Knoxville offers more night life than Johnson City, and to some students night life is the main ingredient for a great weekend.

If one doesn't have money, a car, or really anywhere to go, and is stuck in big J.C., he can make the best of a usually lonesome weekend. by attending the home Buccaneer football games in the dome and searching for a party after the game. Some students go to the Environmental Club on Walnut Street, for a night of socializing, drinking, and dancing. If the E-I gets boring, one can step next door to Tu-La-Fe's for basically the same atmosphere. If one is lucky and has a date, dinner at a nice restruant and a movie, could be the thrill of the weekend. Every once in a while an area concert keeps students on campus for the weekend.

If worse comes to worst, the bored student can round up quarters and detergent and laundry that has been accumulating for several days, if not weeks, and wash clothes. While waiting for the clothes to go from washer to dryer, one could possibly pull out the dusty books and catch up on some usually long-needed studying.

Other weekends, such as Homecoming Weekend can be exciting and most students stay around for the "big Game" and parties afterwards.

Every weekend on campus can't be exciting, so most students do live out of a suitcase during the week and pack it up for the weekend and head towards a certain destination. But other students who live too far from home have to stay and make the best of the weekend.

Occasionally one might be asked home by his roommate, then he too can pack up a suitcase and leave yet another empty parking place.

JOHNSON CITY AND ETSU —

By Mary Pat Buchanan
Staff Writer

Nestled between the beauty of the Blue Ridge Mountains is a thriving town named Johnson City. Johnson City is sometimes called a 'college town' because East Tennesee State University is located there.

Students are the main patronizers of most of the fast food places around campus, plus other local specialty stores, banks, restaurants and the Johnson City Mall.

Not only do students buy items from stores, but many also work at area businesses.

Students can be found most nights at favorite area bars around campus, where students have to buy a membership to get in to buy beer and liquor. Clubs that sell 'spirits' have to sell memberships because Johnson City does not have the liquor by the drink law. Referendum to make liquor by the drink available in Washington County last year failed. But most students don't seem to mind this fact. The bars are packed most every night and the liquor stores are doing a booming business.

Most students receive money from their parents, while others work on campus to earn spending money. Still others, work in area stores. Wherever the money comes from, most students love to spend it. The area banks have many checking accounts for ETSU students.

Even if one does have a meal ticket, meals out are special, so the fast-food places such as Hardee's, Wendy's, McDonalds, Firehouse Bar-b-que, and restaurants, such as the Red Lobster, the Peerless and Widow Browns see many hungry students step through their door.

Grocery stores in the area such as Giant and Kroger, provide students with bread, milk and other basic needs to fill ones refrigerator, (which doesn't hold too much anyway). Grocery stores are important to the students also.

Ask most any girl and some young men where most of their money goes and the answer could possibly be — clothes. Many clothing stores are located in the Johnson City mall, but there are several dress stores around town.

Overall Johnson City is important to the students of ETSU, because for most students Johnson City is "home away from home," but in return the students of ETSU are important to Johnson City.

NIGHT LIFE: ETSU ON THE TOWN

Mary Pat Buchanan
Staff Writer

After a long day of hard, classes, one is usually ready to cut loose at night.

The "night life" in Johnson City is somewhat limited, but every bar or night spot has a different image and a certain type of crowd.

On Friday afternoon, if one doesn't head out of town, "Happy Hour" is usually the first item on the weekend agenda.

Happy Hour at most places starts around 4 p.m. and lasts until 6 or 7 p.m. Several places known for their Happy Hour prices and favorite beverages include The Cottage, Gomez & Garcias, Poor Richards, The Southwest Depot, Bojangles, and T.J.'s.

Good ol' country boys to ETSU professors patronize The Cottage for its good food and beer.

Gomez & Garcias, a new Mexican restaurant, has drawn large Happy Hour crowds. Both Gomez & Garcia's and Southwest Depot offer video games.

Poor Richards is an old favorite of ETSU students, offering students low prices on beer, delicious deli food, and a big screen TV for entertainment.

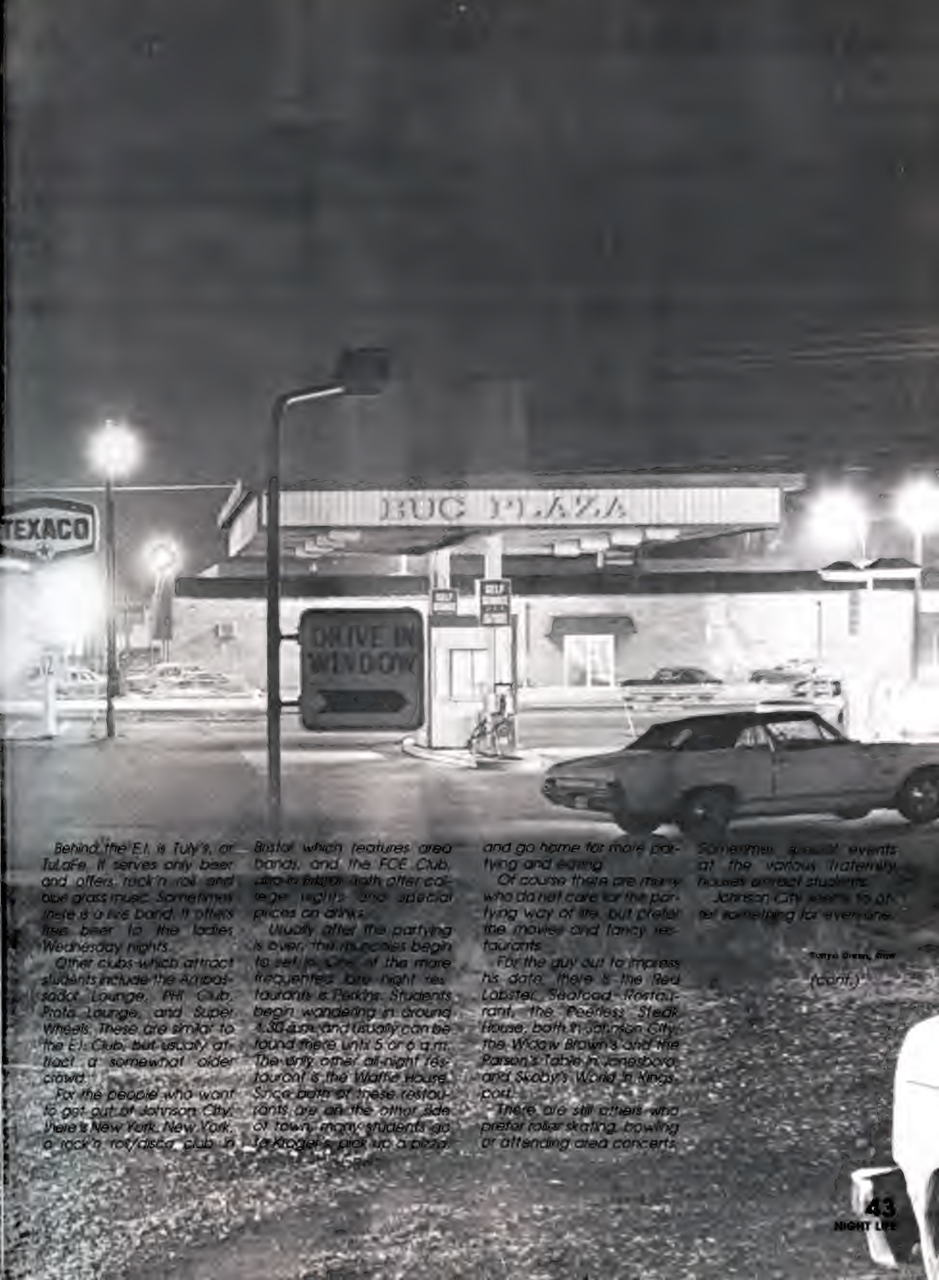
T.J.'s, another new spot, has attracted many of the Greeks on campus. The manager of T.J.'s has allowed some fraternities to decorate the walls with fraternity colors and emblems.

After Happy Hour is over and one is "feeling pretty good", it's time to go home and dress for a "night on the town."

The Environmental Club, better known as the E.I. Club, is usually a good place to start the night. Here one can find many of his friends drinking, dancing, or just listening to music which varies from old 60's tunes to the latest in rock'n roll and disco.

The E.I. offers two Ladies' Nights each week. The first is on Monday; all drinks, except beer are half price. This night usually draws a big crowd. Thursday night there is free champagne and food for the ladies from 7 until 9:30 p.m.

The E.I. also has some of the popular video games in the back and three aquariums. One contains a shark, one has a "calico" fish and the other has various tropical fish.



Behind the E.I. is Tuly's, or TuLaFe. It serves only beer and offers rock'n roll and blue grass music. Sometimes there is a live band. It offers free beer to the ladies Wednesday nights.

Other clubs which attract students include the Ambassador Lounge, PHI Club, Prato Lounge, and Super Wheels. These are similar to the E.I. Club, but usually attract a somewhat older crowd.

For the people who want to get out of Johnson City, there is New York, New York, a rock'n roll/disco club in Bristol which features area bands, and the FOE Club, also in Bristol. Both offer college nights and special prices on drinks.

Usually after the partying is over, the munchies begin to set in. One of the more frequented late-night restaurants is Perkins. Students begin wandering in around 4:30 a.m. and usually can be found there until 5 or 6 a.m. The only other all-night restaurant is the Waffle House. Since both of these restaurants are on the other side of town, many students go to Kroger's, pick up a pizza and go home for more partying and eating.

Of course there are many who do not care for the partying way of life, but prefer the movies and fancy restaurants.

For the guy out to impress his date, there is the Red Lobster Seafood Restaurant, the Peerless Steak House, both in Johnson City, the Widow Brown's and the Parson's Table in Jonesboro, and Skoby's World in Kingsport.

There are still others who prefer roller skating, bowling or attending area concerts.

Sometimes special events at the various fraternity houses attract students.

Johnson City seems to offer something for everyone.

DULL WEEKENDS DO A FLIP

By Mary Pat Buchanan
Staff Writer

Some dull weekends at ETSU did a flip-flop and became exciting when a good concert featuring a special rock group or entertainer came to the Johnson City area to perform.

Many students stayed in town to hear such groups as The Beach Boys, Foreigner, Charlie Daniels, Alabama, and Alice Cooper, just to name a few.

Johnson City is lucky to have Freedom Hall, a coliseum that brings top-name bands to the area and this year was no exception.

The Beach Boys gave a concert during September, which proved to be successful by the turn out of the crowd.

Foreigner, a rock-group with such hit singles as "Urgent" "Juke Box Hero," and "Waiting for a girl like you," appeared before a sell-out crowd in late September. Billy Squire opened the Foreign concert with songs which included his hit single "The Stroke."

Another crowd pleaser that appeared in Freedom Hall was the indescribable Alice Cooper. Although Cooper is sometimes referred to as being a bit strange with his snakes and battered dolls, he left the crowd screaming for more.

One doesn't always have to go off campus to hear great songs. The Rathskeller here on campus has brought several good groups and entertainers for students to enjoy. The Student Government Association had an area southern-rock band perform on SGA Day in the Rat. Mike Williams also captivated students in the Rat as he sang songs and told stories. Williams has opened concerts for such performers as Jimmy Buffet and the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band.

One doesn't have to go too far to hear some good music, Johnson City and the school provide excellent entertainers.

The lights were set, the microphones ready, the audience anticipates the announcement of the winner, the judges were seated near the stage for a prime view, the girls are nervous, anxious and excited, everything was ready for the 1981 Miss Buccaneer pageant.

Several weeks before the night of the pageant on October 9, many girls had gone for interviews with the judges, hoping that they would be able to compete for the title of 1981 Miss Buccaneer. Only fifteen lucky girls were chosen after a hard decision, to compete in sportswear and evening gown competition.

The night of the pageant was finally here and after much preparation by the girls, the Buccaneer staff, who sponsored the pageant, and others, Jeff Anderson, Master of Ceremonies stepped onto stage and welcomed everyone to the pageant.

The fifteen finalists performed a dance routine, followed by the judging of the girls in sportswear.

Entertainment was provided during breaks by Miss Vicki Vaughn, and a trio consisting of Todd Grindstaff, Lee and Frank Newman all students of ETSU.

After the evening gown competition, special guests and the judges were introduced and then the announcement of the five finalists. The five finalists were Darlene Freeman, Lisa Horton, Stacey Stamper, Cathy Stepp, and Lesley Zeller. Out of these five girls the new Miss Buccaneer 1981 would be announced. EXCITEMENT, TENSION, AND COMPETITION . . .

As excited and nervous parents, grandparents, best friends, boyfriends, and sorority sisters filed into the D.P. Culp Center Auditorium on November 20th, they all had one thing in common. Each was there to see one special person crowned Miss ETSU.

"We've Only Just Begun," was the theme of the 1982 pageant which is a preliminary to the Miss Tennessee pageant.

As the curtains opened, the opening number was sung by Miss Jonesboro, Vicki Vaughn, and Jack Leonard.

After which Karen King and Don Carter, Mistress and Master of Ceremonies introduced the judges, and the pageant was off.

Special entertainment was presented by Miss ETSU 1981, Karen Snapp, who entertained the audience with a rendition of the "Smile Melody" that won the pageant for the last year.

Soon slim · bodies and beautiful smiles came into sight, as the ten contestants of the 1982 Miss ETSU pageant filed onto the stage for swimsuit competition.

Miss Vaughn and Leonard returned to entertain while the contestants changed for the talent competition. Talent presentations ranged from belly-dancing to classical piano selections. Judging was a difficult chore.

But evening gown competition was the breaking factor. After the evening gown competition, Miss Snapp made her final appearance as Miss ETSU.

"And now for our winners, Miss Congeniality is Tammy Lyons, Second Runner-Up is Donna Houser and First-Runner-Up who if for any reason, Miss ETSU would not be able to fulfill her full term would become Miss ETSU, is Teigha Randolph. And now the announcement you have been waiting for, Miss ETSU for 1982 is Miss Kelly Shipley." Miss Shipley received a $1,500 scholarship. (cont.)

HOMECOMING IS LIKE HALLO

By Mary Pat Buchanan
Staff Writer

As the air turned cooler and the trees turned from green to bright orange, crimson red gold and finally brown, once again came the tradition of Homecoming at ETSU.

This calls for a very special week for everyone in the university from Dr. Beller to the faculty to each student.

Homecoming week to many students meant staying up all night working on banners, stationary floats, and practicing skits for competition. Sometimes this meant sleeping in during a few classes, because — well, we're only college students. What do you expect — perfect attendance?

Homecoming is a time when parents, alumni, friends and of course, our opponents visit the campus.

For the students and administration Homecoming meant many things — a dance on Friday night, getting out of classes early for a pep rally, fireworks, the band marching, activities day, football, the crowning of the queen, and this year to the Buccaneers Homecoming meant Halloween.

The theme of this year's Homecoming festivities was "Homecoming is as American as Football, Hot Dogs, Halloween and Buccaneers."

With the Cheerleaders shouting cheers, Dr. Ronald Beller, President of ETSU, throwing candy, the marching band playing the ETSU fight song and classes being cut short to encourage students to support Homecoming activities. Homecoming was off.

At dusk the sky was filled with splendid colors by fireworks.

Thursday night sawing, stuffing napkins in chicken wire, and spraying paint went into the wee hours of the morning as each group prepared to win a first place trophy.

The results of the overall competition showed the retiring of a trophy in the Greek Division by Alpha Delta Pi/Pi Kappa Alpha, after winning the competition for the third year in a row. Ellington Dorm captured the first place trophy for the Independent Division.

During Activities Day students had a chance to throw whiped cream pies at fellow students, play "21" for prizes, throw footballs through tires, eat home baked goodies, and basically have a good time. The Loco-Motion Vaudeville Trio presented a show in the anpitheater entertaining students with stunts, a mime and magical shows, jugglers and clowns.

Getting out of class early, gathering with friends at the ampitheater, music blaring by a local D.J. and games and events to participate in or to simply watch, all this was part of Activities Day during Homecoming Week.

Many campus organizations and dorms took part in all the activities, which included the selling of home-baked treats, engaging in activities such as pie throwing, football passes through a tire, or buying ballons. Some competed in activities such as a ballon stuffing contest, an egg toss, or smashing an egg over someones head with a fish.

With a good crowd and the orchestra tuning up, the stage was set in the Gilbreath Theater for the ancient Greek musical drama, "The Boys From Syracuse," directed by Harold Frank. This modern version is William Shakespeare's "The Comedy of Errors".

The musical drama was presented five times in mid-November, and had a very responsive crowd for each showing.

The drama was composed of eleven scenes, each bringing action, talented singing voices, and comedy to the stage. The first scene introduced two sets of twins that have been lost for years. During the whole play, the twins are getting mixed-up, confused, and so is most of the audience. For wives, "ladies of the evening", and even the other twin brother are constantly wondering what was going on. For instance, in one scene, the master twin gives his servant twin money for a gold necklace. A little later the master twin asks the other servant twin for the necklace and he doesn't know anything about a necklace. Instances like these take place during the whole play.

In the end, both sets of twins are revealed to all and everyone lives 'happily ever after'.

DONAHUE

One of the most influential and controversial men of our times visited ETSU on Sept. 2, 1981, before a crowd of approximately 4,500 students, faculty and people from the Tri-Cities and the surrounding states.

That man was Phil Donahue. The atmosphere around him was one of amazement, respect, admiration, and maybe some envy.

The audience heard about his life, including how he went from a reporter struggling for that big story to the host of a talk show that millions tune into every day.

He made remarks on how things have changed since he was a young boy growing up. He commented on parts of his life — his first kiss, dancing, "dipping", and dating.

The younger people in the audience laughed at his memories of a different era. The older people traveled down memory lane with him.

He spoke of the Tri-Cities area very highly. He commented on the people and the atmosphere. He expressed wishes to return to this area and possibly film one of his shows here.

The last half of his show was devoted to questions from the audience. He answered most of the questions, sometimes quite seriously, sometimes jokingly.

He never evaded questions; he was as open and straightforward as he is on his shows. No one seemed too offended by his openness; in fact, most seemed quite intrigued by it.

Close to the end of his show a woman stood up and asked him to check his right pocket. He found a note there, which she instructed him to read later.

He concluded his talk with a remark about a slang term. One of his sons had made a comment to him about some "chick." Donahue had asked "What is a chick, a helpless bird that grows up to lay eggs?" His son replied, "All right, Dad, alright."

With that he said goodbye, wishing the Buc football team a good opening season.

THE DATING GAME, DYNAMIC SEX, AND STRESS

By Mary Pat Buchanan

Television cameras being set up in strategic places, people filing in and finding a place to sit, cups of water being placed upon the podium on the stage, testing one-two-three, all the preparations were ready. The audience was ready. As the lights dimmed and the rustling in the crowd became quiet, internationally-known Dr. Joyce Brothers was introduced.

Dr. Joyce Brothers lectured on "Stress and Anxieties," October 14, at 7:30 in the D.P. Culp Auditorium. She spoke about happy and unhappy feelings, and how to reduce tension. She discussed two types of stress; eustress, which is positive stress, and distress, or negative stress.

Dr. Brothers also spoke on learning techniques and how to learn and remember great amounts of material. She told the audience that no goal is ever set too high to reach: all one has to do is break the goal down into segments. Talking about social simularities and psychological differences in men and women, Dr. Brothers quizzed the audience on how well one understands the opposite sex. For example, is it true or false "that women change their minds more than men?" This question, as all of the others on the quiz, has been researched and the answer found to be false.

Dr. Brothers ended her delightful lecture by answering several questions from the audience.

Dr. Arthur DeRosier, returned to ETSU at the end of October to give a lecture on the value of pluralism in America.

The former president of ETSU, defined pluralism to an almost capacity crowd in in the D.P. Culp center "as equal ethnic and religious co-existance."

Tracing America's lack of ethnic and religious equality from the Pilgrams to present time, DeRosier captivated the audience by giving both examples and personal experiences dealing with ethnic and religious pluralism.

The lecture was over much too soon, but when DeRosier said "thank-you," the audience stood for a standing ovation.

"Dynamic sex refers to fulfilling sex in a fulfilling relationship. Love is the key to sex; sex isn't the key to love." stated Rusty Wright, a traveling speaker of Campus Crusade for Christ International, who spoke on campus in mid-October.

Wright and his wife have written several books on sex, dating, love and marriage, the topics of Wrights' lecture.

An interesting point Wright brought out, was that "an estimated 50 to 60 percent of college students engage in premarital sex." Wright went on to give the audience 10 sample questions to see if one is truly in love. An example of these questions was: "How do I feel when we are apart?" The energetic speaker concluded by saying "that marriage is here to stay," because more people are finding that a commitment has value in fulfilling ones life.

HOLIDAYS AND BREAKS . . .

By Mary Pat Buchanan

Suitcases are packed as dorm rooms and parking lots empty.

No, this is not a weekend, but one of the several holidays and breaks that we look forward to each year.

Our first holiday of the year was Labor Day, bringing us three more days of summer-like weather. While some students scurried off for a few days in the sun, others took to the mountains backpacking, or to the lakes skiing.

The next holiday on the agenda was a break in more than one sense of the word. Halloween not only brought out spooks, costumes, howling, parties, and pumpkins, but also Buccaneer spirit. This was Homecoming.

Just when most students and professors have about come to the end of their rope with school, Thanksgiving break arrives. This usually means an extended weekend at home for many to study

After everyone has eaten enough turkey and dressing to last for another year, pulling all-nighters in the books, eating cold pizza and popcorn, and preparing term papers, is somewhat of a let-down. Even more of a let-down is the overhanging finals week slowly creeping upon us. The only reprieve in sight is Christmas break, a whole month off. (cont.)

The Christmas season at ETSU is marked by the mid-November appearance of Christmas trees of every kind and description in the Carol Reese Museum. The display draws children and adults throughout East Tennessee. The display is also a signal to ETSU students, not to despair, the semester is almost over.

But coming too soon, is the finals week, a week, or this semester, a weekend of two hour tests in every class. Some professors let the class decide whether to let the last hour test count for the final or to take a comprehensive test over everything. The choice is obviously the first.

After the drudgery of finals is over, it's "dash away, dash away, on Pinto, on Mustang, on bus, on foot, or on the first sled home" for a month of reprieve.

Christmas break is a time for rest, relaxation, earning some spending money, and preparing for another go at the old semesters.

When Spring semester begins, it's not usually what most people think of as the warm days of Spring. In fact we're lucky if the temperature rises above 32° in the afternoon.

But don't despair, this weather is perfect for snow skiing in Boone, North Carolina. Many students take advantage of all-night or all-day rates at the many ski resorts only an hour away.

In February comes Valentine's Day when many of the organizations sponser booths where students can have flowers sent to their sweethearts.

In late March comes another break that students look forward to most of the year. Spring break for most students is a time to break away from the books, pack the car up for warm weather destinations, and spend hours on the road. Fort Lauderdale, and Daytona Beach are popular choices while some students take a cruise over spring break.

After Spring break is over, and the sun tanned bodies begin to fade comes another Finals weekend. Summer break or Summer school soon follows.

No matter where we go, or if we go anywhere our holidays and break time is sacred to us. Also there is never enough time off to get everything we would like to get done done. Students still would like to have a mid-to-late Fall break like Spring break. So far this has not come about.

REESE MUSEUM HAS a yearly display of Christmas trees decorated in traditional and modern styles.

BRINGING THE BEACH indoors seems to be the idea behind this sand castle in the shower at McCord Hall.

MAKING A HOME ABROAD

By Mary Pat Buchanan
Staff writer

Living away from home to most students at ETSU usually means living around the corner from home or several hours away, but for an international student, living away from home is usually thousands of miles away.

ETSU has 175 (including dependents) international students enrolled, representing 135 different countries. Most international students come to ETSU to major in environmental health, computer science, or to do graduate work in microbiology.

Mylena Starr is the counselor of International Student Services and has set up several programs to make a student living abroad feel more at home.

The office of international students serves as a liason between the international student and the university community. This office also provides counseling for the international student.

So when an international student goes away to school, it is a long way from home, but ETSU tries to make him feel right at home.

MYLENA STARR PROVIDES information and guidance for international students: Jose Ventacilla, Peru, Mylena Starr, International student counselor, Manop Wongsurybat, Thailand, Shuichi Ohbani, Japan, Asrob Abdul-Kadir, Malaysia, and Kamol Ruangmanamongkol, Thailand.

SHARING:

By Mary Pat Buchanan
Staff Writer

For most students at ETSU getting an education is a lonely ordeal, but for the 78 families that live in the married student housing complexes, getting an education is a shared effort.

Married students differ from single students in that being married brings responsibilities and obligations. Adding an education to an already busy schedule is hard to say the least, but for many married students their schedule also includes either a full-time or part-time job.

As the Johnson family shows, married life can be hectic. Melanie Johnson has completed her degree and is employed as an English teacher in the Washington County School System. Michael Johnson is a Senior majoring in Management, and like many married students, the Johnsons have a son, Benjamin Ross.

Melanie's day begins early as she must be at work by 7:45 a.m. Before this, breakfast must be prepared, the baby fed and taken to the sitter, and Michael must prepare for class.

Many parents who work or are students at ETSU use the Child Care Center in the lower-level of Warf-Pickle Hall. The Child Care Center cares for pre-kindergarden age children while parents work and students attend classes.

While being married presents many problems for students, there are some advantages that make it worthwhile; having someone to confide in, financial security, a social life with other married couples, and the family atmosphere. Being married also brings with it budgets, grocery lists, cleaning house, washing dishes, and in-laws, but for many married couples these are the challenges of going to school and being married.

KNOXVILLE, TENNESSEE;

The skeletal shell of the Sunsphere stands bleakly silhouetted against the snow-laden landscape.

A somber sight now, but when completed, this permanent landmark of the 1982 World's Fair will glow like a beacon from light reflected off its 24 karat gold dust tinted windows.

This may sound like the setting for an exotic faraway resort, but it actually can be found less than 100 miles away in Knoxville.

The fair, hosted by Knoxville, will open in May, 1982 according to Teresa Estepp, executive vice-president of the Upper East Tennessee Tourism Council.

"Energy Turns the World," is the theme. At the present, the following countries are participating in the fair: the United States, Australia, Canada, the Federal Republic of Germany, France, the Hungarian People's Republic, Italy, Japan, the Republic of Korea, Mexico, the People's Republic of China, Saudi Arabia, the United Kingdom, Belgium, the Netherlands, Denmark, Ireland, Luxembourg, and Greece.

Many national and international corporations will also participate: Ford, Avis, Coca Cola, Eastman Kodak and General Electric, to name a few.

Exhibits sponsored by the participating nations will focus on the culture of the country or in its technological achievements involving energy.

For instance, the Great Britain expedition will feature a simulator of a nuclear reactor, the Saudi's exhibit will have a desert complete with camps and tents, and the Japanese will display robots that speak foreign languages. In the pavilion of the People's Republic of China, a piece of the Great Wall will be exhibited.

In addition to the exhibits, the World's Fair will provide a once in a lifetime opportunity to sample the dining, shopping and entertainment of other nations.

There will be Broadway productions, symphony orchestras, ballet and opera companies, as well as guest appearances by such celebrities as Bob Hope, Red Skelton, Patricia Neal, Stephanie Mills and Debby Boone.

Sports enthusiasts can enjoy football, basketball and baseball games, boat races, soccer, boxing and golf. Special track and field championships held by the World's Fair and the University of Tennessee will be in June.

Hosting a World's Fair is no small task. According to an article in the Chicago Tribune by Alfred Borcover, planning for the fair began in 1974 and construction started in 1979.

"Total cost of the fair is $100 million," Borcover said.

Funds were allocated by private financial sources. No public tax revenues were used.

Congress did approve $21 million for the construction of the United States pavilion, and the State of Tennessee funded $3 million for its pavilion.

Economic Research Associates estimate that eleven million people will flock to the World's Fair that will occupy 72 acres between downtown Knoxville and the UT campus.

This number may seem astronomical but according to Borcover, "Knoxville is receiving from 10,000 to 15,000 inquiries a day," concerning facilities and accomodations.

If this makes you wonder if being invaded by so many tourists is worth it consider the positive results that Borcover said Knoxville and East Tennessee will realize from the fair.

For example, $224 million worth of interstate work was completed 10 years ahead of schedule. In other words "they got rid of malfunction junction," said Estepp.

The L & N railroad station and 12 of Knoxville's older buildings were renovated.

A convention center will be made from the fair's Lifestyle and Technology Center.

Knoxville will gain three new hotels.

The 266-feet high Sunsphere, which houses two restaurants, will remain as a permanent landmark of the fair. It will be a future tourist attraction similar to Seattle's Space Needle from the 1962 World's Fair and the Eiffel Tower from Paris' World Fair in 1889.

National and international corporations will be introduced to tourism and industry in Tennessee.

As far as the Tri-Cities are concerned, Estepp said that all hotels and campgrounds in this area are expected to be booked up with tourists during the fair's run.

Area tourist attractions should benefit as people "look for interesting things to do and see after or on their way to the fair," she said.

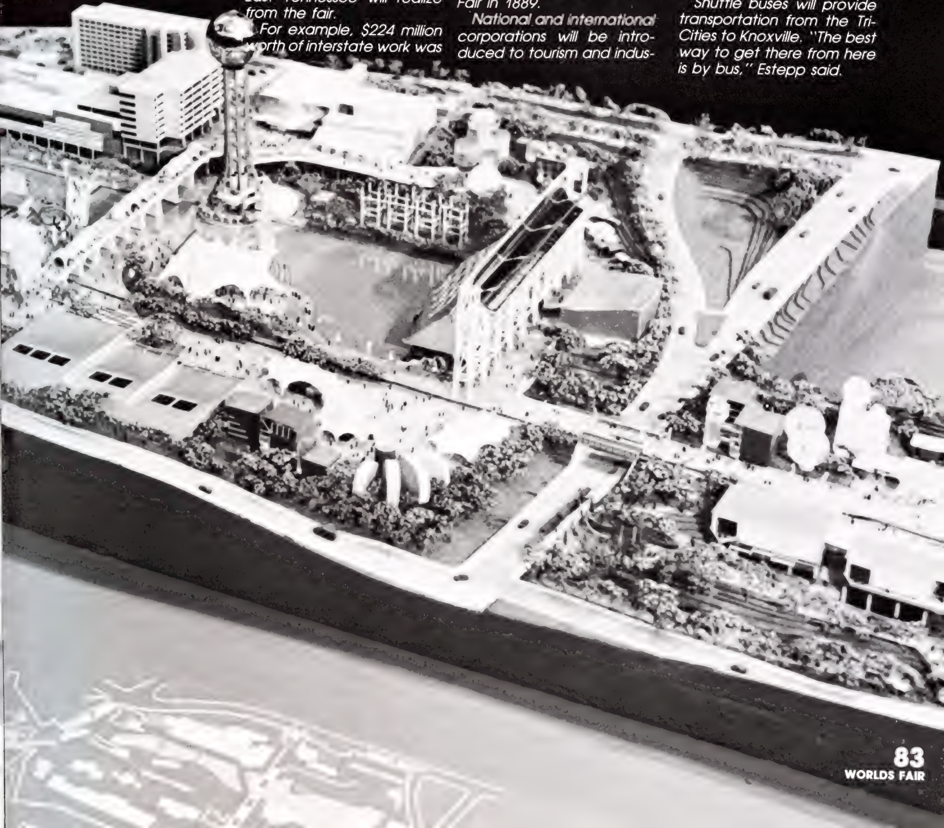
Restaurants and gas stations in the area should do a booming business.

According to Estepp, "Overall, we will have a good spinoff from the fair."

The fair begins May 1 and will last through Oct. 31.

It will be open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Shuttle buses will provide transportation from the Tri-Cities to Knoxville. "The best way to get there from here is by bus," Estepp said.



FINALS DAZE

By Tammy Kooch
Staff Writer

The end of fall semester brought the most trying days of every college students life; finals. This year finals consisted of five days of two hour long comprehensive tests which began on Thursday and ended the following Tuesday. This marks the first time that finals were given on a Saturday. It gave students a day-long break on Sunday to study or relax and in many cases a two day break if they were lucky enough'to not have a test scheduled for Saturday.

The weather caused problems when students awoke on Thursday morning to find the ground covered with snow. Professors as well as students had difficulty getting to campus and many tests were rescheduled for Saturday.

Besides the weather, finals alone are enough to drive students to the brink of insanity. Every semester vows are made to keep up with reading assignments, turn homework in on time, and to finish term papers and projects early so that theoretically, all that will be required to breeze through finals is a review of the material. However, the probability of this happening is about 1 chance in 10,000, (there's always one perfect student).

As finals draw ever nearer, students merely make a notation of when the dreaded dates and times are. This is usually lost and results in a midnight search for a schedule book by the panicky student.

As the test date comes closer, the scramble begins to finish projects, term papers, take make-up tests and tests which professors are kind enough to schedule one week before the final test. The pressure slowly builds as study time slips by without a book being opened. Eventually the last class meeting draws to a close and the student breathes a sigh of relief, only to gasp in horror seconds later as he realizes that at 8:00 the next morning he has his first final.

So begins the hours of torture during which students fortified with no-doze, coffee and visine try to remember and memorize a semester's worth of material.

It seems that no matter how well a student has done all semester, the final test is still horrifying. Maybe because in many cases this test makes up around 25% of the final grade.

Of course there are always those who haven't read any of the material and must tackle enormous amounts of reading. This usually leads to a search for a place to accomplish this feat. By the end of the semester, dorm walls are closing in so the student wanders to the library, only to find what amounts to a party as everyone spends hours discussing how horrible their tests are going to be. He then wanders aimlessly back to his dorm, orders a pizza, gets comfortable and turns the TV on. Two hours later he remembers that he should be studying and opens the text, then the phone rings. Four phone conversations later, he settles in again, only to have his roommate arrive, turn the stereo on full blast and invite some friends over. Finally, around midnight he thinks, "Well, I've still got seven hours", with one hour left to sleep. With eyes that won't stay open, he attempts to force his brain to retain the material. Around 4:00 a.m. the only thing left to do is to figure out a final grade based on different final exam results, such as a 0. If he can still pass with a 0, he goes to sleep. If it's going to take a 60 — he drinks another cup of coffee and reads the material one more time.

Finally the dreaded day arrives and the world dissolves into a blur af endless essay questions, problems and cover sheets. The time speeds by as the student hands in the test and tries to remember when his next test starts. With a glazed look in his eyes, he moves from test to test like a zombie. By the time the last final begins, many students do well to write their name on the paper.

For anyone who has gone through finals and survived, just remember the feeling of relief as the last test is turned in and a well-deserved vacation begins.

REAGAN

By Tammy Kooch

Classes, sports and campus events are not the only factors that affect a college student's life. Even though many of us are relatively sheltered within the grounds of ETSU, we still need to be aware of the world around us and how it will affect our lives now and in the future.

President Ronald Reagan's first year in office was impressive as his term began with the release of 52 American hostages from Iran after being in captivity for 444 days. Only months later, however, tragedy struck as an assasination attempt by John Hinckley left the President with a bullet wound that pierced his left lung and left White House Press Secretary James Brady critically wounded. After the President's recovery, he began working on budget cuts, slowing federal spending, shrinking social programs and a 23%, three-year cut in income tax rates. Reagan advocated reducing the size of the government and stimulating productivity in the private economy to curb inflation. However, an unforseen reccession, along with the tax cuts may lead to budget deficits that he can't reduce.

Foreign policy issues were a controversial topic as Reagan's anti-Soviet stand increased cold war tension. The senate finally gave consent to the sale of AWACS radar planes to Saudia Arabia and Reagan levied economic sanctions against the Polish government to show the United State's opposition to the enaction of martial law on the Polish people.

President Reagan was not the only target in assasination attempts. Pope John Paul II was shot in St. Peter's Square and recovered. His would-be assasin was sentenced to life in prison. Tragically, Egypt's President, Anwar Sadat was gunned down during a military parade by four Islamic fanatics. As the year ended, rumors of more attempts led to increased security.

The United States Supreme Court ruled that the draft registration in effect was constitutional in not including women in the registration. Ironically, perhaps, Sandra Day O'Conner was nominated by President Reagan to a position as Supreme Court Justice. Her nomination was approved by the Senate in September which made her the first woman Justice in the Court's 191 year history of 101 male Justices.

Great Britain also had its day in the news as the world watched Lady Diana Spencer wed to Prince Charles of Wales, heir to the British Throne. 750 million people watched on television as the fairy tale Wedding took place. The Royal wedding had all the pageantry of a bygone era complete with fanfares, a procession of horse-drawn carriages and the beauty of Lady Diana's stunning wedding gown.

On April 12, American ingenuity triumphed as the space shuttle Columbia roared from its launch pad. The Columbia is unlike anything ever flown before. After being launched like a rocket, the shuttle circled the earth 36 times and glided to a landing on the Mojave Desert at Edwards Air Force Base in California. Seven months later, it became the first spacecraft to return to space. The success of the shuttle along with the Voyager 2 flight past Saturn kept America in first place in the space race. Besides being reusable, it is capable of taking up to 65,000 lbs. of satellites, scientific and military hardware and components into space.

1981 was a bad year for air traffic as striking air traffic controllers were fired and replaced. Among air tragedies were an airliner which crashed into the Potomac River after takeoff from the Washington D.C., airport killing most of the passengers. Four members of the Thunderbirds elite flying team were also killed when they crashed during a training session.

Unusual weather caused problems throughout the nation as an intense cold wave brought snow and sub-zero temperatures. Many cities were immobilized and others struggled to dig out from under record-breaking snowfalls.

Looking back, 1981 was a year of triumph and tragedy, hope and despair, but most of all, it was another year in our lives at ETSU — one to be remembered.

THE ULTIMATE GOAL:

By Cindy Duncan

Every term students look forward to the ultimate goal of coming to college: GRADUATION — getting the degree.

As graduation becomes more of a reality to each student, they begin questioning themselves and their ability. "Am I ready to leave school and begin working?" "Is this what I really want to do for the REST of my life?" "Can I find a job here, or will I possibly have to move somewhere far away?"

As the day gets closer and closer, the questions are more intense. But when the day is finally here, the questions disappear as the thrill of the moment takes over. The graduate is ready to take his knowledge and his degree, go out into the world and show it just what he can do.

As he walks across the stage, degree in hand, he is no longer a student striving for — a degree, he is a graduate — striving for the chance to show the world that he made it.

New doors have opened, a new life is begining — places to go — people to meet-things to do . . .

Last spring a total of 764 degrees were awarded. Broken down by degrees, there were 160 Associates, 545 Bachelors, 54 Masters, two Specialists in Education, two Doctors of Education and one Doctor of Philosophy.

THE PROCESSION HAS begun . . . ETSU 1981 spring graduates make their last steps across campus as they proceed to the mini-dome to receive the important paper that makes them a graduate — a diploma.

THE NECESSITIES

Kim Dyer
Staff Writer

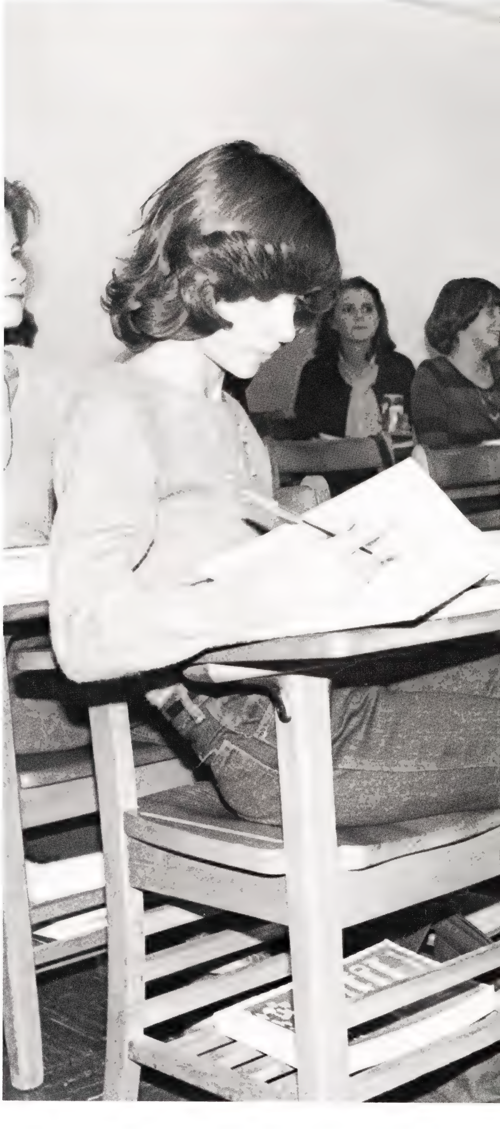
Almost everyone has to take what is infamously known as "general core requirements." Those are the fun classes like U.S. History, Introduction to Sociology, Introduction to Psychology, Freshman English, Biology and Society, Physical Education . . . and the list goes on.

These are the classes you must take in order to prove to the world that you are a well-rounded person. It seems that educators have been trying to prove that point to the world since you've been in school from day one. And to think that they still don't have the world convinced!

You can spot a required class a mile away. It usually is held in a lecture hall and on a good day maybe 15 students will show up to take notes for the other 85 students who have already made arrangements to skip the class for the next three weeks.

Invariably, you run into the same people in about half of these classes. The ritualistic conversation includes a couple of "I know I've had a class with you, but I don't remember which one," and "No wonder I can't recall your name. You were only in class for the mid-term and the final." Ah, such is the life of those who have not yet fulfilled the dreaded core requirements.

Eventually, however, you will meet a couple of people who are in almost all of your core classes, and a friendship evolves. After all, what can you expect when you take alternate weeks attending class with someone?



ENGLISH IS A required class that no one can avoid.

STUDENTS LISTEN ATTENTATIVELY to their professor lecture in an education class.

GREAT WAKER-UPPERS . . .

Kim Dyer
Staff Writer

Just great!

It's only 8:15 in the morning and (for some reason you'll never understand) here you sit amidst 30 or so other students who all thought a first period class would be a great waker-upper.

Fact of life; being lectured to in a first period class is seldom if never a great waker-upper, and boring lectures are great only if you've had insomnia and need a strong sedative.

However, some students (believe it or not) manage to stay awake during these trying times. Their methods for staying awake (or at least appearing to stay awake) are varied and, at times, amusing.

During first period, a favorite pasttime is curiosity . . . especially when it comes to those little bags fellow students carry to class which are laden with (what else?) breakfast. The concoctions these people produce vary from two scrambled eggs and ham to Pop-Tarts and a toaster.

The periods between first and fourth are usually filled with delayed yawns and semi-closed eyelids, but fifth period presents a new and unusual problem.

Fact of life: Stomachs (especially yours) tend to growl and make all sorts of lovely and embarrassing noises at the precise moment that you are trying to appear to be totally engrossed in a lecture that you would rather just miss . . . and this usually happens just as the professor pauses and silence prevails.

After fifth period, things (especially lectures) just seem to get worse. Everyone in the class is tired, including the professor, and sitting through another lecture is not on anyone's list of the top 50 million things to do for fun. So entertainment enters the classroom. Carrying on a discreet conversation with someone sitting very close to you can be interesting — even for the entire class. While you two are sitting there exchanging not-too-repeatable quips and comments, the professor and the remainder of the class are rapidly becoming amused at the various facial expressions you are utilizing. Occasionally you can even manage to hear a chuckle from your professor.

Ned Jilton, Staff

But by far the worst class of the day is the final one: the night class. Even if sitting through a lecture for two and a half to three hours isn't bad enough, then lo and behold there is always the predicament of attempting to figure out a way to meet your favorite someone after the two of you are let out of class.

Fact of life: No two night classes let out at the same time . . . especially the two in which a couple of sweethearts are enrolled.

There are only two real solutions to escape these boring lectures: drop the class or drop out of school.

EXPRESSIONS SOMETIMES REFLECT feelings toward the topic of certain boring lectures.

EVERYONE'S LECTURE IS boring at some time or another, even in a communication class.

THERE ARE MANY ways of avoiding a boring lecture . . . even by reading a homework assignment.

IN REVIEW

Kim Dyer
Staff Writer

Of all the classes taught here at ETSU, the one which is most needed should be entitled, "How to Take Notes When You Couldn't Possibly Care Any Less."

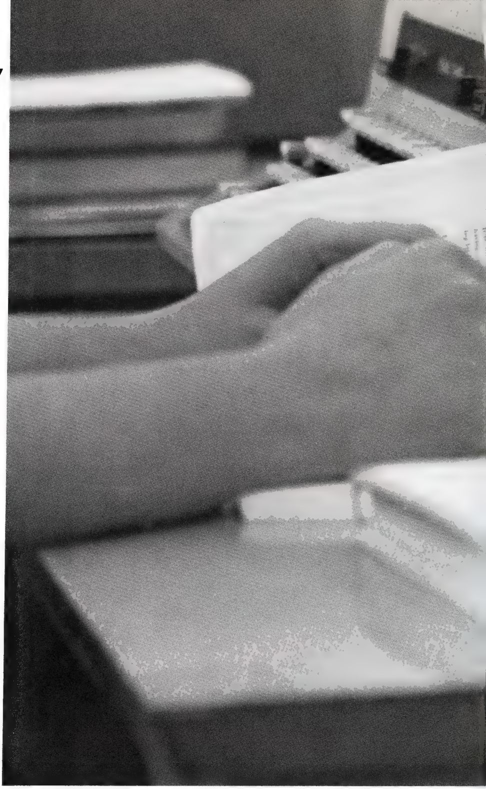
Notetaking is an art that does, indeed, require as much skill and dedication as a work of art. It's much easier to bluff your way through note taking sessions, and if you care to pay attention to the people around you in class, you'll find that the majority of them resort to what is known as taking false notes. In other words, the things they are writing down have absolutely nothing to do with the lecture which is going in one ear and right on out the other.

Some students get into name writing. This can include writing your own name approximately 5,000 different ways and styles or writing the name of the special someone in your life and combining it with your name in various arrangements.

Another notetaking technique is called letter writing. This can come in very handy for those students who have many out-of-state relatives to write letters to and usually have no time to write them. With a small amount of skill and practice, one can use one class period to answer absolutely all unanswered mail. Of course, this can and often does take a bit of practice.

Then there is the tactic which provides some entertainment but requires more skill to fool the instructor. This is the practice of playing games on paper with a nearby student. Such games as tic-tac-toe and hangman are oldies-but-goodies.

However much fun that these note taking sessions can be, you must realize that when it comes to taking a test in American Government, a group of tic-tac-toe games aren't a whole lot of help when you are attempting to review John Locke's theories.



THERE ARE TIMES when there just isn't anything that seems important enough to write down.

ON-THE-JOB TRAINING . . .

By Lisa Peters Stewart
Staff Writer

Internship, a semester of on-the-job training, rounds out the education of students majoring in Education, News Editorial, Law Enforcement, Nursing, Social Work, Dental Hygiene, Graduate Studies and all the Associate and Certificate degrees from the Nave Paramedical Center in Elizabethton.

This specialized training provides the scholar with valuable insight and experience relative to his professional career. This experience is beneficial in several ways: one becomes oriented in the manners of his chosen profession, expectations of his career will be outlined, and he will be introduced to professional life and its requirements.

This training generally takes place after a student has completed his academic requirements. He is then placed in a school if he plans to become a teacher, a hospital if has chosen a health profession, or riding around in a squad car if he will be entering law enforcement.

Internships provide valuable experience in preparation for a career. It may be a period of discord, or it may be one of harmony, depending greatly upon the supervision which one receives. It is a time of learning, however, and one should approach it with a professional attitude. It is vital that much knowledge and experience be gained.

College of Arts and Sciences . . .

SATISFYING CORE REQUIREMENTS . . .

The major objectives of the College of Arts and Sciences are to give students a well-rounded and liberal education which will increase their capacity to live satisfying and productive lives; to provide the necessary academic background for the training of elementary and secondary teachers; to provide professional training in the liberal arts areas and pre-professional work in such areas as medicine, dentistry, pharmacy, law, engineering and medical technology. All general education core requirements are satisfied in the College of Arts and Sciences.

This college achieves its objectives by introducing students to those major fields of interest that are included in the humanities, social sciences, natural sciences and certain service professions.

The College of Arts and Sciences is composed of the Departments of Art, Biological Sciences, Chemistry, Communication, Criminal Justice, English, Foreign Languages, Geography and Geology, History, Mathematics, Music, Philosophy, Physics, Political Science, Psychology, Social Work, and Sociology and Anthropolgy. Interdepartmental programs are also offered in American Studies and Humanities.

Pre-professional students planning to continue study in engineering, medicing, law, dentistry pharmacy and other professional areas are enrolled in the College of Arts and Sciences.

The College of Arts and Sciences experienced a few changes during 1981, with the major one being the loss of Dr. Robert Botkin. A search committee was formed at the first of the year to find a replacement as Dr. Lattie Collins began the year as the college's acting dean. Collins previously served as chairman of the Physics Department. He has been at ETSU for 17 years.

Another change occurred as the Department of Mass Communications and the Department of Speech and Theater combined to form the Department of Communication.

HONORS PROGRAM INITIATED

Honors education has grown to be an important component of undergraduate studies in many universities across the country, and this year marked the beginning of honors education at all State Board of Regents colleges and universities in Tennessee, including ETSU.

The Honors Program offers the opportunity to combine the breadth of a large university with the advantages of the small liberal arts college: small classes, knowing and being known by faculty and administrators; in other words, a more personal education is available.

The program gives a choice in lower level courses of Honors sections of the general education core requirements. It also enables study in significant areas in the major field of study in greater depth than afforded by the regular department curriculum.

College of Business . . .

TAKING CARE OF BUSINESS

The major objective of the College of Business is to provide a broad foundation in general education and business fundamentals as a basis for future growth and development of the individual as a member of the society and to provide a program of professional education at the undergraduate and graduate levels that will enable men and women to occupy positions of responsibility in business and in government.

The college also prepares the student to pursue graduate study in business and economics, provides the opportunity and environment for faculty research, provides a service to the business and economic community through cooperative activities, and prepares men and women as administrative assistants.

To achieve these objectives, the College of Business provides the student an opportunity to acquire a broad knowledge of internal problems of business organization and control as well as an understanding of how business may be affected by the complex forces in the economic framework within which it functions. For this reason, emphasis in the program of instruction is placed on the development of a well-rounded knowledge of business fundamentals and an understanding of the structure and processes of the American economy.

The College of Business includes the Departments of Accountancy, Economics, Finance and Marketing, Management and Office Management. The Office Management Department offers a one-year secretarial program, a two-year Administrative Secretarial Program, a two-year Legal Secretarial Program and a two-year Medical Secretarial Program.

Replacing last year's dean, Dr. James McLean, is Dr. Allan Spritzer who came to ETSU in August of 1981. Spritzer formerly served as the assistant dean and professor at the University of Alabama in the College of Commerce and Business Administration. He has also been employed at Cornell University.

IT'S AN EDUCATIONAL EXPERIENCE . . .

The College of Education serves all students who plan to teach and who meet requirements as described by the university's approved teacher education program.

Students pursuing programs leading to initial professional certification as a classroom teacher at either the elementary or secondary level must follow the appropriate curriculum for teachers, including general education for teachers, the teaching major and secondary teaching field, the appropriate professional education requirements and all other requirements leading to the bachelor of science degree for teachers.

Responsibilities of the College of Education include planning, coordination and implementation of all university teacher education programs leading to initial or advanced personnel; providing professional services as requested by schools in the service area of the university; providing or assisting in the provision of appropriate in-service and professional development activities as requested; and planning and conducting research and development studies growing out of needs identified in academic programs or in the public schools.

The college includes the Departments of Curriculum and Instruction (Elementary, Kindergarten and Secondary Teaching; Reading; and Science Education), Human Development and Learning (Child Development, Early Childhood Education; Guidance and Counseling, School Psychology and Special Education), Media Services (Library Service and Instructional Communication), Physical Education and Recreation (Physical Education, Athletic Training, Corrective Therapy and Recreation) and Supervision and Administration (Principal, Superintendent and Supervisor).

A Child Study Center is operated by the Department of Human Development and Learning as a part of the Early Childhood Education program. In addition, a campus school encompassing grades 1-12, is operated in association with the College of Education and the Washington County school system.

Dr. Charles Edwards fills the spot as dean of the College of Education. Edwards has been dean since January of 1981. He last served as dean of the West Virginia College of Graduate Studies. Prior to that, Edwards held positions at Illinois State University and the University of Nebraska.

HEALTHY ATTITUDES FOR ALL . . .

The School of Public and Allied Health, composed of the Departments of Communicative Disorders, Dental Hygiene, Environmental Health and Health Education, affords students the opportunity for extensive and intensive study in several areas of the health field. Through selected courses, the school offers enrichment of all students' programs with the knowledge and understanding necessary for personal action toward optimum health.

The school prepares students for positions as speech pathologists and audiologists to serve in education, government, public and private clinics as well as in industry and research. The school offers clinical services to those having speech, language and auditory disorders.

This school also functions by providing professional training which meets the requirements for Tennessee licensure for students wishing to enter the field of Dental Hygiene. The professional education of Environmental Health personnel for industrial, governmental and public health positions is also a goal of the school.

The School of Public and Allied Health offers professional preparation of health educators who are trained to assist official, private and volunteering agencies, community groups and individuals in their efforts to organize and work toward a more optimum level of health care. In addition, programs for the preparation of specialized health teachers for public and private schools are offered.

Due to the death of Dr. John Lamb, Jr. last spring, a vacancy in the dean's office of the School of Public and Allied Health existed at the first of the fall semester. Dr. Hiawatha Walker was the acting dean as a search committee attempted to find a suitable candidate for the position. Walker has been employed by ETSU as a professor of health education for 11 years and was expected to return to that position when a dean was found.

CAREING FOR OTHERS

The School of Nursing is designed to provide students with the knowledge and skill base necessary for the practice of nursing locally, nationally and/or internationally. This is provided by two degree programs — the baccalaureate degree and the associate degree program.

Students who complete either program are eligible to write the State Board Test Pool Examination and upon successfully passing the examination become Registered Nurses. Both programs are accredited by the National League for Nursing, the professional nursing accrediting organization. Both programs also have student nurse organizations which are affiliated with the state and national student nurse organizations.

In addition, the School of Nursing is currently designed to provide outreach programs to practicing registered nurses. Nurses from diploma or associate degree programs who wish to obtain a baccalaureate degree in nursing are provided this opportunity. Multiple programs are provided to registered nurses in the area who wish to earn continuing education units.

School of Nursing dean is Dr. Edith Summerline who has held that position for three years.

College of Medicine

FIRST GRADUATING CLASS . . .

The College of Medicine at ETSU was established by act of the Tennessee General Assembly in March, 1974 in conjunction with the Teague-Cranston Act of the U.S. Congress. The primary purpose of the College of Medicine is to provide more physicians and better medical care in Upper East Tennessee and the surrounding region. Through a diversified program of medical education, the college seeks to provide well-qualified medical students with the opportunity to acquire a sound basic education in medicine and to foster the development of life-long habits of scholarship and service. The college emphasizes primary care as its major educational objective.

Another important role of the College of Medicine is the advancement of knowledge through research. In addition to biological studies, the research includes studies related to cultural and behavioral aspects of medicine, methods for the delivery of health care and the medical education process. The college is responsible for the development of graduate education in order to produce practitioners, teachers and investigators, both through clinical residency programs and advanced degree programs in the basic medical sciences. The College of Medicine actively produces and participates in programs of continuing medical education aimed at maintaining and improving the competence of those professionals engaged in caring for patients.

The College of Medicine includes the Departments of Anatomy, Biochemistry, Microbiology, Pathology, Pharmacology, Phsiology, Family Practice, Internal Medicine, Ostetrics/Gynecology, Pediatrics, Psychiatry and Surgery. Also included are the sections of Medical Education, Biophysics and Occupational Medicine, the Library and Learning Resources Center, the Offices of Continuing Medical Education, Educational Resources and Student Affairs.

The College of Medicine does not offer any courses or degree programs at the undergraduate level.

Dr. Herschel Douglas became dean of the College of Medicine in August, 1981. He came to ETSU after being associate dean of the University of Texas Health Science Center at San Antonio, as well as being chairman of Family Practice at the same university.

APPLY IT TO SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY

The objectives of the School of Applied Science and Technology are to promote and increase specialized and professional competence through technical and applied science courses to provide theoretical and research techniques, and develop basic scientific method skills in relation to technology, and to prepare a student for a career by providing the scientific and sociological principles on which his/her profession is based. Additional areas of study include English and literature, mathematics, humanities, social and natural sciences, and courses to assist in developing interpersonal relationships.

The structure of the School of Applied Science and Technology seeks to fulfill its purpose by offering a number of associate, baccalaureate and master of arts degrees in the Departments of Computer and Information Sciences, Home Economics, Industrial Education, Military Science, Technology, and in the Division of Vocational Education. The purpose of the Division of Vocational Education is to consolidate the vocational education aspects of the various university departments. The Department of Technology administers two-year programs designed to prepare technicians in the areas of surveying, drafting and design, and construction. The Departments of Industrial Education, Computer and Information Sciences, Home Economics and Technology all offer BS degrees, and the MA degree is offered with two options, one in Industrial Education and one in Technology.

The Department of Military Science is a cooperative program between the University and the United States Army. The purpose is to prepare advanced students for service as commissioned officers in the active Army, Army Reserve or Army National Guard.

The dean of the School of Applied Science and Technology is Dr. Rollin Williams. He has been dean since September of 1980 when the school was established.

BRANCHING OUT

The Division of Extended Services encompasses many areas.

A major opportunity to obtain academic credit is provided through the large offering of evening classes on the main campus. Any course of the university may be scheduled during the evening for full credit and be applied toward degree requirements as appropriate, and, while evening classes are scheduled as a primary convenience to non-resident students, both resident and non-resident students may enroll and register for classes on campus or at any of the university's centers.

Day and evening classes, including lower and upper division and graduate courses, are offered in the Kingsport University Center, and offerings are sufficient to meet most degree requirements of the university during the first two years.

General education courses and special training are provided in the Nave Paramedical Center in Elizabethton for certificates or associate degrees as a Dental Assistant, in Dental Laboratory Technology, as a Medical Assistant, as a Medical Laboratory Assistant, in Respiratory Therapy Technology, in Surgical Technology and in Radiologic Technology.

Extended Services also offers continuing education with instruction and training provided through special classes, conferences, seminars and workshops arranged at the request of, and in cooperation with organizations, industries and special interest groups.

The Office of Career Development provides services in career planning, cooperative education and placement. Services are available to undergraduates, graduate students and alumni.

ETSU's School of Graduate Studies offers a wide choice of graduate education, including planned programs of study leading to various master's degrees, the specialist degree and the doctoral degree. The graduate programs are designed to provide specialization in professional, academic and interdisciplinary areas.

BOARD REPORTS A 3.5% ENROLLMENT INCREASE AT ETSU

By Kim Dyer
Staff Writer

The state Board of Regents met at ETSU September 17-18, 1981, for its yearly meeting with Gov. Lamar Alexander presiding.

During the meeting, Dr. Roy S. Nicks, chancellor of the board, presented facts which included ETSU's 3.5 percent enrollment increase for the fall semester after a 10 percent enrollment decline last year. This was the only one of the four board institutions which are on semester scheduling to record an enrollment gain. A loss of 1% to 7.2% was recorded at Memphis State, Middle Tennessee State and Tennessee State.

The board approved the limitation of state dollars for athletics to $375,000, with no general budget funds to be used for athletics.

In direct relation to ETSU, the board approved of the Master of Education degree at the University as an alternative to the MA degree in elementary education, reading, secondary education, guidance and counseling, special education, instructional communications, library service, physical education and educational administration and supervision.

In response to a plea from Dr. Ronald Beller, ETSU president, the board allowed the continuation of the MA degree in mathematics at the University for an additional year, although the program was to be monitored by state officials. The degree was to be terminaed after being labeled as low producing program by the Tennessee Higher Education Commission.

BELLER:
THE YEAR IN REVIEW

By KIM DYER
Staff Writer

Changes in administration, regional applicability in research and redirection of the University's mission to serve the immediate region were among the goals President Ronald Beller had realized or expected to realize in the future as he began his second year as president of ETSU.

Beller listed administrative personnel changes in the establishment of the office of Vice President of Finance and Administration and in the changes in the deans of the Colleges of Education, Business and Medicine as well as the changes in the directors of libraries, Kingsport Center, athletics, development and alumni affairs. Another change occured with the addition of Beller's executive assistant, Dr. David Tiffany, who is the coordinator of university advancement.

Beller's primary goal for ETSU is "A redirection of the University's mission to serve the immediate region,"

At the beginning of the fall semester, the search for the vice president of academic affairs continued because the search committee did not reach a successful conclusion last summer. Beller explained that the position would be advertised again and then the search committee would be put back to work. Search committees were also working to fill vacancies in the offices of deans of the School of Public and Allied Health and the College of Arts and Sciences.

"Take into account all those people and total them up, and you'll have probably as many changes as you'll find in any university in the country right now," said Beller. "When you have that many (changes in) positions at that level of the institution, you have an impact which will come about by virtue of new talent."

Beller also expressed concern in the area of regional applicability of university-oriented research. "In many cases, the local-type issues will have national interests as well," he said. "If we do something, like we're doing, on the reclamation of coal land, that's something that has impact beyond our area. But it has impact on the general region of the university as well. I see us having made statements to the effect that we were still committed to this over the last three and a half to four years, but there that commitment statement began to get watered down.."

The president also gave his personal objectives as having and fulfilling a strong responsibility to serve the East Tennessee region. He said that instructional programs should be geared for prospective students in the immediate area as well as outside of the Tri-Cities area.

Beller also foresees nontraditional education as a possible direction of education for the future. Such educational opportunities include teaching in shopping centers to reach women who might consider re-entering college as well as in-plant education to further educate plant employees. "Those kinds of things are definitely in the future. sound programs of appropriate quality where the delivery mode is definitely not traditional," said Beller.

etsu THE SOUTHERN CONFERENCE:

By Lisa Adams
Staff Writer

ETSU's admittance into the Southern Conference in the Fall of 1978 marked a sudden and somewhat controversial change for the school's athletics. Many believed that our sports programs would suffer great losses from competing against more experienced schools.

The Southern Conference, established in 1921, is in its 60th year of operation, making it the fifth oldest major college conference in the United States. Only the Big Ten (1896), Big Eight (1907), Missouri Valley (1907), and Southwest Athletic (1914) are older in terms of origination.

The roots of the Southern Conference are traceable back to 1894, when a number of football-playing institutions formed a loose confederation known as the Southeastern Intercollegiate Athletic Association. By 1920, the SIAA had grown to 30 members.

Fifteen of the larger institutions met in Atlanta, Ga. on February 25-26, 1921, and officially formed the Southern Intercollegiate Conference. Approval of the conference was obtained from the faculties of 14 of the institutions, and on August 22, 1921, the following schools became charter members of the Southern Conference:

Alabama, Alabama Polytechnic Institute (now Auburn), Clemson, Georgia, Georgia School of Technology (now Georgia Tech), Kentucky, Maryland, Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical College (now Mississippi State), North Carolina, North Carolina State College, Tennessee, Virginia, Virginia Polytechnic Institute (now Virginia Tech) and Washington and Lee.

But ETSU was quick in showing its strength. The 1980 athletic program finished second in the All-Sports Commissioner's Cup for the best overall program in the Southern Conference.

The rifle team placed third in the NCAA championship, with three members on the All-American team and six on the All-Conference team. The baseball team ranked fifteenth in the NCAA Division I, reached the play-offs in the NCAA Atlantic Regional, won the Southern Conference championship, and had the first 44-game winning season for East Tennessee State University. The men's basketball team finished fourth in the Southern Conference, with the women's basketball team winning the ETSU Christmas Tournament and finishing second in the TCWSF state basketball tournament (women's conference). The tennis team placed first in the Southern Conference tennis doubles, and two team members were picked for All-Conference.

The golf team won the conference championship, the Marshall Intercollegiate Tournament and the Avatar Intercollegiate Tournament. The men's volleyball team was the best in the Southern Conference; the women's gymnastic team qualified for the AIAW Southern Regional Championship; and one of the football team members was selected for the Academic All-American team.

The track team earned more than its share of awards: ETSU's cross country team was fourth in the NCAA championship with two members on the All-American team, ranked fourth in the NCAA in a poll covering successful teams over a 10-year period, qualified one female for the AIAW Nationals, won the District III NCAA championship with six members on the All-Conference team, and had an undefeated season. The indoor track teams qualified one male for All-American, qualified two males for the NCAA Nationals, qualified five females for the AIAW Nationals, and qualified five males for the All-Conference team. The outdoor track teams qualified three males for the NCAA Nationals and three females for the AIAW Nationals; four members made the All-Conference team and state track championships.

Coach-of-the-Year awards were won in cross country for NCAA District III and in the Southern Conference for cross country, indoor track and golf.

Any doubts that may have existed in the beginning have long since vanished as ETSU continues to establish itself as a strong contender in the Southern Conference.

1982 EASTMAN

By Marianne Pearson
Staff Writer

The 1982 Eastman Invitational Track and Field Meet was held January 8-9 in ETSU's Memorial Center.

World class athletes such as high jumper Dwight Stones, long jumper Larry Myricks and hurdler Renaldo Nehemiah attested to Meet Director Dave Walker's effort to make each year's meet bigger and better than the last. Fifteen new meet and center records were set, including one new world mark.

Merlene Ottey, competing for the University of Nebraska, won the women's 440-yard run in a time of 53.20. This topped the old world mark of 53.9 set by Rosalyn Bryant in 1980.

Stones, a former US Olympian, tied Oklahoma's Greg Seay in the men's invitational high jump with a height of 2.20 meters. Stones competed for the Pacific Coast Track Club. Myricks took the long jump title with a distance of 8.15 meters (26.73 feet). Nehemiah set a new center record with a time of 7.04 in the hurdles, breaking the old mark set by Terron Wright of Memphis State in last year's meet. Both Myricks and Nehemiah were members of the Athletic Attic team.

Another Athletic Attic competitor, Ed Langford, set a new mark in the pole vault of 17'6". The old meet and center record was 17-0 set by Jeff Buckingham of Kansas in 1979.

The University of Tennessee's Benita Fitzgerald recorded a new mark for the women's 60-yard hurdles, finishing in a time of 7.85. Gale Watkins held the old record of 7.94. Another Lady Vol runner, Delisa Walton, finished the 88-yard run in a time of 2:07.43, bettering the old meet and center mark by .37.

The university men's division two-mile run crown was taken by Bryan Allf of Duke University in a time of 8:24.19.

INVITATIONAL

Allf broke the old record of 8:35.46, and defeated the former record holder, ETSU's own Adrian Leek.

Villanova's Carlton Young ran a 46.45 in the men's 440, to better the old mark of 46.67 set by Willie Smith of Auburn in 1979.

Alabama's Emmit King won the 60-yard dash (invitational division) with a time of 6.17, tying the record set by Harvey Glance of Auburn.

Calvin Smith, also from Alabama, took the tape in the university men's 60-yard dash, with a 6.13, also breaking a record set by Glance.

Eastman's invitational shotput record is now held by Kevin Akins of Ohio State, who won the event with a distance of 19.80.5 meters, or 64'11¾''.

New records were set in both the mile relay and the two-mile relay. Villanova's quartet crossed the line in a total time of 3:10.33, bettering the old mark of 3:11 set by Auburn in 1978.

Pittsburg fielded the winning combination in the two-mile relay, finishing in a time of 7:27.96, .22 seconds faster than the former record set by Oklahoms's runners two years ago.

Former ETSU standout Ray Flynn won the Kodel Fiber Mile. Flynn's time of 3:57.47 was three seconds off the meet and center record of 3:54.50 set by Steve Scott. Flynn was competing for the New Balance Track Club.

A former ETSU athletic now competing for the US Marine Corps, Kim Harrell, tied for top honors in the women's high jump with Virginia's Ann Blair.

ETSU's Mark Scruton finished fifth in the men's 880-yard run. That event was won by Florida State's Phillip Rolle.

Adrian Leek, running for New Balance track club finished fourth in the men's two-mile invitational event.

BATTER UP

It had to be a bitter pill to swallow, to be so close to the College World Series and then lose by one run. But this is exactly what happened to the 1981 Buccaneer Baseball Team. Although the Bucs 6-5 loss to Mississippi State in the NCAA Atlantic Regional finals knocked the team out of the College World Series, the Bucs overall record of 44-17 says a lot for the players skill and determination through the entire season.

The Bucs clinched their third Southern Conference title, under Coach Charley Lodes, with a record of 12-4.

The team ended regular season play in a first place tie with Western Carolina and Marshall University for the conference title. A play-off series was held at Appalachian State University. The team entered the playoffs confident of a win. Outfielder Tony Martin and shortstop Mike Nipper led the ETSU team to a 9-4 win over Western Carolina in the first game of the series. Martin and Nipper, named the "Tiny Giants" by the press, held the teams season record for homeruns with 11 and 17 respectively. The baseball team ended the conference battle by taking two consecutive games from Marshall 9-2 and 5-3.

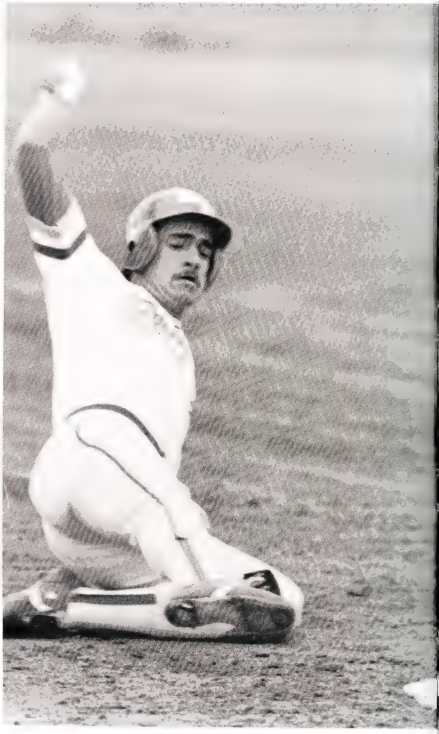
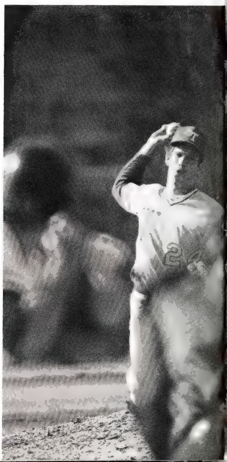
It was with these wins that the Bucs entered the NCAA play-offs at Clemson University. But it looked like an early setback when the team lost their first game to Mississippi State 7-6. It soon became evident to everyone that the Bucs didn't know the meaning of the word lose. The ETSU players fought their way back by taking the second game against Clemson 2-1 and the third game against Witchita State 5-4.

It was a hard fought battle between ETSU and Mississippi State in the final deciding game, but when the smoke settled the Mississippi Bulldogs were the champs with a 6-5 victory.

The Blue and Gold team was helped through the season by a fine pitching staff. Senior Jeff Andrews, one of the first players signed by Lodes when he came to ETSU, posted a 10-3 win-loss record. Joe Graves ranked right in the top with a 11-4 pitching record, followed by Greg Bartley with 9-4.

It would be hard to pick just one outstanding player as the key to the Buccaneer Baseball team because all the members displayed such talent, but it is easy to say that the 1981 team is one of the finest examples of ETSU sports unity and excellence.





CONCENTRATION IS AN important part of pitching.

MEN'S CROSS COUNTRY TEAM: ETSU PRIDE

By Lisa Adams
Staff Writer

"Good things come in small packages" is an old saying that has been proven true by the Buccaneer cross country team.

Coach Dave Walker's team may be small in number compared to other college teams, but the honors they've won and records they've set have been anything but small. The ETSU team is widely known, not only collegiately, but also for national and international competition.

The men continue to set high standards this season, such as first place in the University of Kentucky Invitational and the Furman Invitational Cross Country Championships. The team won its fourth straight Southern Conference title, placing five of its runners in the top five positions for the win. Those who placed in the top five of the 10,000 meter race were Dennis Stark, Mike Mansy, Ben Turpin, Carey Nelson and Kevin Johnson.

The Bucs carried their winning ways into the NCAA III Cross Country Championships in Greenville, S.C. where they took another first place finish. This win enabled the Bucs to take their 12th straight trip to the NCAA finals in Wichita, Kansas. The team placed sixth in the finals coming behind some big names such as the University of Texas at El Paso and UCLA.

The mens team was led this year by sophomore Dennis Stark. Stark, who had won every race he had entered until the NCAA finals, set many course records this season.

Other team members who made impressive shows this year were; Mike Mansy, who placed seventh in the University of Kentucky Invitational, fifth at the Furman Invitational, and 13th in the NCAA III Regionals; and Ben Turpin who placed 13th, 16th, and 20th respectively in the same meets.

Carey Nelson, a freshman from Saskatchewan, has already proven himself to be a great asset in the future of the cross country team.

LADY HARRIERS FACE PROMISING SEASON

By Lisa Adams
Staff Writer

"Our biggest problem this season will be competing on a team basis with larger schools." These were the words spoken by the women's cross country coach Loyd Roberts about his 1981-82 team.

The team has six runners returning from last year, and two new runners who are competing for the first time at ETSU.

The returnees are sophomore standout Kim Bird, Doris Turpin, Kaki Frincke, Linda Preston, Dee Fox and Betsy Baymiller. The two new runners are Denise Turpin and Debbie Dube.

The squad opened their regular season with a tenth place standing at the University of Kentucky Invitational in September. Kim Bird finished fifth in the Invitational.

Another admirable finish for the Lady Bucs was a second place win in the ASU Invitational held in Boone, N.C. Kim Bird came in first in the 5,000 meter race with a time of 17:04.2 followed by Dee Shipley 3rd, Kaki Frincke 17th, Linda Preston 25th, and Doris Turpin finishing 36th.

The ladies still have half of their season left, but with the promising start they have already made, the 1981-82 season will be a good one.

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT as the Buc's strive for the best season ever.

ETSU FOOTBALL: MOVING ON UP!

By Lisa Adams
Staff Writer

For the fans, coaches, and players the 1981 football season was a season of hope. The final record was 6-5, quite a lift from last year's dismal record of 2-9. The Bucs Southern Conference record was 4-2-0.

Early in the season Coach Jack Carlisle noted that two trouble spots on the team were defense and receiving. Carlisle stated that lack of experience would plague the defensive line and receivers.

Sophomore Scott Nault had a good year as quarterback with 63 completed passes out of 116 attempts. Nault, who emphasizes a running instead of passing game rushed 197 out of 234 times.

The Bucs offense suffered a setback early in the season with the loss of key running back Ricky Reeves. Reeves suffered a knee injury in the second game of the season against Louisiana Tech. "Our game was built around him," said Coach Carlisle. "We had become dependent on Ricky, he was a game breaker."

The slack in the offensive line was soon taken up by standouts Earl Ferrell, Jerry Butler, Richard Dill and Todd Bloomer. Keith Oliveria led the Buc receivers with a total of 202 yards in 14 catches. He was followed by Shelby Cornelius with 177 yards out of 11 catches.

Perhaps the most heartbreaking loss of the season was the Homecoming game against UT-Chattanooga with a final score of 17-0. Before the largest home group of the season, 11,742 fans, the Bucs two game winning streak was brought to a halt. A display of strong defense on the part of both teams saw the first quarter end scoreless. A hindrance to the Bucs effort was the injury to quarterback Scott Nault late in the first half. Also injured in the game was lineman Jay Patterson.

The Bucs made it clear this season that they will soon be a strong contender for the conference title. If the Bucs were plagued by youth and inexperience this year, then the hard work and knowlede they've gained in the 1981 season should keep them moving on up in 1982.

BUC BASKETBALL: GUARANTEED EXCITEMENT

By Lisa Adams
Staff Writer

The Buccaneer basketball team has certainly had its ups and downs over the years, but ever since the squad has come under the leadership of coach Jim Hallihan it has seen a steady rise in standings.

Hallihan, who is in his fourth year as head coach, was faced with the problem of replacing three of his top players from last season. Gone are top rebounders Clint Smith and George Underwood. Also absent from the team was strong inside scorer Charles Thaxton.

On the up side of the season was the return of seven outstanding lettermen. Returning were junior Troy Lee Mikell, who led last seasons scoring with a 14.1 average, senior Winfred Reid, senior Aaron Douglas, sophomore Marcus Reese, junior Andre Motley, junior Marc Quesenberry and senior Craig Lester.

Five newcomers also provided added depth to the squad this season. They were juniors Sonny Vinson and David Henderson and freshmen Greg Belcher, Mike Dent, and Kingsport native John Gray.

The Buccaneers,who have finished fourth in the Southern Conference for two straight years, are hoping to better last seasons overall mark of 13-14.

After their win over Furman, 92-90 the Bucs had a 7-3 conference mark.

GUARANTEED EXCITEMENT!

Buccaneer basketball fans reached an all time high in team support during the 1981-82 basketball season. As a result of extremely cold weather, a home basketball game had to be moved to Brooks Gym because the temperature in the Dome was too low. What resulted was an action packed basketball game in front of 3,062 packed fans. Fans, and students felt more a part of the game than was possible in the Dome, so they started procedures to move the rest of the games to the gym.

At first the administration objected to the move and the games were held in the dome. Spirit remained high, however and students worked to convince the administration to move the games back to the gym.

Some students circulated petitions and the Student Government Association strongly backed the move, passing a resolution supporting the move, taking a survey of where the students would prefer the games be played, talking with administrators, coaches, the team and local news media.

After a long debate the decision was made to finish the season in Brooks Gym, to the delight of students and fans. Hopefully this will be the start of a growth in spirit and backing by the fans that will eventually lead to moving back to the Dome to accomodate the number of fans attending the games.

LADY'S BASKETBALL: A SHINING SEASON

By Lisa Adams
Staff Writer

The Lady Buccaneer Basketball Team had already established itself as a powerhouse in the Southern Conference with last seasons record of 12-9, but this years team is showing that they are even stronger than before.

The key to the women's wins seem to be a strong man-to-man defense. The remarkable shooting and rebounding percentages also help put the Bucs past some nationally ranked teams.

The ETSU team started its season with seven returning players. Leading the women is junior Marsha Cowart. Cowart, who has a good chance at being named All-American this year, led the team in scoring half-way through the season with 24.5 points-per-game. She is also the all-time leading scorer in Lady Buccaneer history with 1,326 points and many more to come before the end of the season.

Punkie Mills, Beth Bass, Jackie Phillips, Sherri Tynes, Regina Blair and Margaret Stroup are just some of the other returning standouts from last year.

A new addition to the squad this year is freshman Lori Hines. Hines, who plays the point guard position, has already earned herself a starting positien and is averaging second in scoring with a 12.3 average.

The Lady Bucs still have a third of their schedule left to play, but with the record shattering start they already have it should be a shining season.

LADY'S VOLLEYBALL: A YEAR OF NEW STARTS

By Lisa Adams
Staff Writer

Louise Stallworth's first year as coach of the ETSU Lady Bucs volleyball team was filled with dramatically close games and surprising turn arounds.

Coach Stallworth commented that she recognized the teams potential when she first arrived and expected a lot from them.

The 1981 Lady Bucs started their season with eight returning players. Returning starters Sandy Hester and Nancy Carter, were joined by returnees Shawn Cochran, Brenda Holtsclaw, Melea Hunter, Linda Elston, Pam Sherwood and Janet Storm.

The Lady Bucs started slowly with a 1-5 record after their first invitational tournament at UNC-Asheville. Near the end of the season the team placed second in the state behind the Tennessee Tech Lady Eagles. The team made their way to the finals of the Tennessee College Women's Sports Federation Tournament by defeating Middle Tennessee State 2-0 and UT-Chattanooga 2-0. Leading the Lady Bucs play in the tournament were Sandy Hester and Nancy Carter, who were named to the All-State team.

Under the guidance of Coach Stallworth and with the experience picked up by the players this year the ETSU Lady Bucs will face a 1982 season with a chance to gain even more honors.

MEN'S TRACK: KEEPING PACE

By Lisa Adams
Staff Writer

Although the men's outdoor track season doesn't start until mid-March, the hard training for its members and Head Coach Dave Walker is a year round event.

After placing third in the Southern Conference last year behind VMI and Appalachian State the team will have to show great stamina to maintain its standing. The reduction of scholarships and the loss of some of the runners for various reasons will be some of the negative factors working against the team this season.

On the positive side of things is the return of many veteran runners, who are also members of the Buc cross-country team, and the addition of several promising freshmen.

Those returning are sophomore standouts Dennis Stark, Mike Mansy, and Kevin Johnson, Junior Ben Turpin, and senior track veteran Bob McKay. The freshmen team members are Carey Nelson, Gerard Duffy, and Johnson City native Wayne Prickett.

All the meets scheduled this season are important to the Buc team, but the two the runners are really working towards are the Southern Conference championships, to be held in May at Greenville, S.C., and the NCAA championship in June At Brigham Young University. Two new relays were added to the schedule this year, the Kentucky Relays and the Virginia Invitational.

The men's track team may find themselves a little short handed this season, but with the experience and ability already displayed they should have no trouble keeping pace.

LADY'S TRACK TEAM FACES

By Lisa Adams
Staff Writer

After losing several girls since the start of spring training Ladies Track Coach Loyd Roberts forecasts a possible weak season.

Among the nine remaining runners is nationally ranked Kim Bird, seniors Linda Preston, Jackie Bland Shelia Halsey, hurdler Connie Everhart, and distance runners Dee Shipley, Doris and Bernice Turpin.

The Lady Buc women will be working hard to ready themselves for the Tennessee State Meet in May. They will also be sharpening their skills for a return to several other important meets such as the Tiger Belle Relays in Nashville, the Becky Boone Relays in Richmond, Ky., and the Tom Black Classic in Knoxville.

Although the Lady Buc runners seem to be facing a difficult season ahead, it can also be a time for them to prove how much real ability strengthens a team.

BUCCANEER SOCCER: A GROWING SPORT

By: Lisa Adams
Staff Writer

The ETSU Soccer team is entering its second season as a member of the Buccaneer sports squad. The young team was first created when ETSU was admitted to the Southern Conference.

Under the coaching of Charles Carter, the team has faced some strong setbacks this season. One of the biggest was a ruling that found nine players ineligible for conference play. Some of these ruled ineligible were key starters for the team.

The season opener was against the Tusculum Pioneers, where the Bucs posted a 3-0 victory. After such a hopeful start the team lost their second game to the Davidson Wildcats with a score of 7-3.

With strong team standouts such as Mohammed Abdosh, Acho Nwana, Bob Tenteler and goalies Sylvester Ololie and Duke Obule, it won't be long before soccer will grow into a highly publicized and admired sport on the ETSU campus.

BUC WRESTLERS BUILDING UP

By Lisa Adams
Staff Writer

A new member was added to the ETSU sports team last year, the Buccaneer wrestling team. The grapplers, coached by Tony Farrace, is made up of mostly freshman and sophomores. Added depth and experience and an increase in the number of team members to 10 are just some factors that will help the Bucs make a place for themselves in the Southern Conference. Hard work and the teams love of the sport is a trait of every team member.

"All members of the team are out here because they love the sport of wrestling," noted Coach Farrace.

The Buccaneers sported an 0-3 record when they opened their home schedule January 13, against the Carson Newman Eagles. Coach Farrace credits the teams standing to the rash of injuries that have plagued the 137, 177 and 191 pound weight classes.

Some of the key players for the team are Jose Rodriguez in the 158 pound class, Chris Prescott in the 152-pound classification, Orson Finely, 142-pound class and Johnny Brown in the 126-pound competition.

EXPERIENCED RIFLE TEAM TAKE HONORS

By Lisa Adams
Staff Writer

One of ETSU's least publicized, but strongest team competitors in the Southern Conference is that of the 1981 Buccaneer Rifle team. The team, coached by Ray Carter, has dominated Southern Conference play since its entrance four years ago.

Credit is given to all the shooters for their skill and marksmanship that has brought them many honors over the year, including placing third in the nation at the National Collegiate Athletics Association Rifle Championships. The shooters placed second in small bore and third in air rifle to give them overall third place honors.

The Buccaneer shooters lost only one team member, Hand Brancaccio, from last year. Such members as Ethel-Ann Alves, John Duus, Joe McGuigan and Marie Miller continue to carry the ETSU team to the top.

Two-thirds of the way through the season the team sported a 36-1 record, losing one game to Tennessee Tech. The Southern Conference championships were to be held February 20.

GYMNASTICS ON THE UPSWING

By Lisa Adams
Staff Writer

Gymnastics will always be thought of as a sport of precision, control, and undeniable beauty. All these qualities and a few more are definitely features of the Women's Gymnastics Team.

The team finished its spring season by acheiving the highest overall score in the Regional Finals with team member Robyn Perry placing in the finals on the uneven bars.

The 1981-82 Lady Bucs are looking forward to an even more impressive season this year. Added depth and an increase from six to 11 members will do much in making the gymnastics team a formidable opponent in competition.

Coach Chris Ayers credits every member with a strong sense of team unity, a very important quality in any competitive sport. Each Lady Buc has great emphasis and skill in her special field, whether it's the balance beam, uneven bars, or floor exercise.

If enthusiasm, hard work, and teamwork are the elements of a successful season, then the gymnastics team is definitely on the upswing.

BUC NETTERS FACE YEAR OF REBUILDING

Coach Buddy Hartsell's men's tennis team faced a spring season of rebuilding and rematches. After losing several top players to graduation, the team worked hard during the fall to put together a winning combination for doubles and singles.

Although many members of the team were facing just their second season of play, everyone was optimistic that the team would overcome its inexperience and develop into another ETSU winning team.

In 1981 the tennis team placed first in the Southern Conference tennis doubles, and two members were picked for All Conference.

The women's tennis team proved early in the season that they would be a strong force.

The two leading Lady Bucs, Kaye Figg and Brennan Crump, have experienced tremendous success since joining the squad, both in doubles and singles play.

Other key players who added to the strength of the team were Lee Bailey, Patty Heaton, and Donna Arnold.

Coach Mike Jones praised every girl on the team for the added depth and growing unity which symbolized the 1981-82 women's tennis team.

GOLFERS CAPTURE CONFERENCE TITLE

By Mark Scruton
Staff Writer

As the spring season progressed, the Buccaneer golfers looked as though they were getting nicely prepared for the Southern Conference Championships. Joey Sadowski finished an impressive 5th in an excellent field at the Furman Intercollegiate. After their trip to the 12th Annual Marshall Invitational, the Bucs brought home the team title as 1st and 2nd in the individuals. Steve Munson took the title and Eric Lawson was runner-up at one shot behind.

After two good days in the Conference, which was held at the Raintree Country Club in Matthew, North Carolina, Coach Morrison's team battled through the win gallantly on the final day and took the title convincingly by a seventeen shot deficit over Marshall with Furman in third. Our players excelled with all five scorers in the top 13. The scores were as follows: 1st — Eric Layhon 75 — 67 — 72 — 214 (total), 2nd — Steve Munson 71 — 72 — 73 — 216 (total), 5th — Joey Sadowski — 83-68-71-222 (total), 9th Stu Ingraham 75 — 75 — 73 — 223 (total), 13th — Dennis Wood 72 — 76 — 79 — 227 (total).

This victory by the golfers was their third consecutive title. This is an outstanding achievement that has only been matched by three other teams in conference history.

ETSU INTRAMURALS:

By Lisa Adams
Staff Writer

Every Fall and Spring a strong phenomenon takes place on campus. Arm-chair quarterbacks suddenly find themselves in the middle of a pack of bloodthirsty competitors and coeds shed their high-heels and fingernail polish for softball gloves and bubblegum. Greeks rise from the excitement and fatigue of rush parties to take up bowling balls and footballs. Only one thing could be responsible for this almost magical transition — intramurals!

Fraternities, dorms, clubs, women, and independent leagues are all brought together for a few months of the year to compete against, cheer for, and in general have an all-around good time in their team efforts.

The wizard in charge of all these hundreds of enthusiastic participants is Coach Tom Joyce. Joyce oversees schedules, game officials, and authorizes official scores.

Because of Coach Joyce's dedication to the intramural program much growth and expansion has been seen in activities and offerings.

Intramurals, to all who participated will always bring memories of the time when just once they were the star quarterback, the track star, the tennis pro, or the golf champ. The most important thing about intramurals is not always who won, but the new friendships made, the fierce competition exhibited and the good sportsmanship displayed.

UNORGANIZED SPORTS ARE FOR

By Lisa Adams
Staff Writer

Everyone has heard of good sports, bad sports, spring sports, fall sports — but let us introduce you to something new: unorganized sports.

For those of you who are wondering what unorganized sports are, let me ask you this. Have you ever tossed a frisbee for fun, jogged a mile for exercise, riden a bike for transportation, smashed a tennis ball to release tension, or climbed anything from mountains to buildings just for the excitement? If you answered yes to any of the questions then may I welcome you to the growing ranks of initiated members of unorganized sports.

Almost everyone, from the muscle-bound sports buffs to those who get squeamish at the thought of sweating, have at least once in their life participated in unorganized sports.

PERFORMING FOR THE FALCONS

By Lisa Adams
Staff Writer

Dedication, stamina, precision — these are just three words that can be applied to the 215 members of ETSU's marching band.

The band, under the direction of Joe Hermann, can be heard, if not seen, practicing daily almost all year. The majorettes and flag corps are also part of the band's spectacular shows.

One of the bands most outstanding accomplishments this year was their appearance at the Atlanta Falcon-San Francisco Forty-Niner's game in Atlanta. All the hours of preparation and hard work paid off when the band received a standing ovation from the dazzled audience of over 65,000.

Another eye-catching show put on by the ETSU Marching Band was its salute to the Armed Forces during the ETSU-Citadel game. The world's largest flag, measuring 25 x 20 yards was displayed while the band played service tunes.

So the next time you start to catch a quick coke and popcorn at half-time, socialize with your friends, instead treat yourself to a guaranteed pleasurable fifteen minutes with the ETSU Marching Band.

GETTING INVOLVED

By Susan Rainwater
Staff Writer

Getting students involved, bringing students and faculty closer together, creating interest and enthusiasm throughout the campus, promoting conservation, and serving students, faculty, and the community is a job — a job that the Student Government Association (SGA) strives to carry out.

Plans were made in the summer to organize freshmen orientation and devise a new car pooling system.

"Before we can work for the University we must be an organized organization," said SGA president Jeff Anderson. Part of the planning was to establish goals for SGA.

Those who began their first year here as freshmen or transfer students were introduced to SGA at one of the four orientations. SGA representatives worked with the students, gave them tours of the campus, and were available for questions, comments, and requests.

A student handbook was published by SGA to help familiarize freshmen and transfer students with the campus.

A new car pooling system was ready when students arrived on campus. Its objective was to help commuters and weekend travelers conserve energy, save money, and help students meet one another.

To kick off the fall semester SGA held, along with UCPC, a Student-Faculty Picnic in the Amphitheater August 31. This was the beginning of several social events that were planned to help introduce the students and faculty. Attendance at the picnic was good: seventy-five faculty members and three hundred students participated.

On "Meet SGA Day" tables were set up outside the library with free cookies and drinks. The purpose was to let the students meet and talk with SGA members, distribute Student Discount Cards, and promote a better understanding of SGA. "We received a lot of good ideas and suggestions, Anderson recalled.

One of the greatest successes for SGA and the campus was Homecoming. SGA was in charge of many of the activities. With the theme, "Homecoming is as American as baseball, hotdogs, Halloween, and Buccaneers,"

The 606 Student Activities Fund was established with a one dollar activity fee charged to each student. The purpose of Bill 606 was to provide financial aid for organizations sponsoring campus activities, events, and programs. The fund provided assistance for several activities, including the Miss Buccaneer Pageant, Homecoming fireworks, a conference of Social Work, and the Student Book Exchange.

The SGA consists of eight cabinet members, eight court justices, and thirty-two senators.

The following persons comprised the 1981-82 cabinet: Jeff Anderson, President; Clyde Boone, Vice-President; Rick Marshall, Secretary/Treasurer; Karen Dieterich, Secretary of Interior; Wendy Greear, Secretary of Legislative Affairs/Laura Stone, Secretary of Student Activities; Mark Wattenbarger, Secretary of Public Relations; and Donna Houser, Secretary of Student Organizations.

The court justices were Jeannie Walters (Chief Justice), Paul J. Frye (Associate Chief Justice), Jim Shelton, Frank Wolfe, Walter Williams, Jack Hensley, Larry Webb, and Al Thompson.

One of the activities the representatives of SGA participated in was TISL: Tennessee Intercollegiate State Legislature, which was held in Nashville on November 5-8. Several legislative recommendations were discussed. One of these was a fund to be set up to reward students who worked with conservation. Another recommendation involved publishing an evaluation of teachers.

REPORTING STUDENT LIFE

By Susan Rainwater
Staff Writer

ETSU staff, students, and the general community benefit from the University's publications: The Buccaneer, the East Tennessean, and the Mockingbird.

The Buccaneer is the University's yearbook which is published annually in Spring semester. For the last 70 years a student staff has presented the school with a reflection of events on campus. The purpose of the yearbook is to present an accurate collection of articles, pictures, and names of persons in representative activities and organizations which will be representative of the year for which it is published. In addition, the yearbook recognizes graduating seniors and students selected for honors, titles, and achievements at the University.

Another purpose of the yearbook is to familiarize area high school prospects with the University by showing the different aspects of college life, activities, sports, and organizations.

The editor of the Buccaneer is appointed by the Student Publications Committee. He or she then fills the following salaried staff positions: assistant editor, photography editor, business manager, copy editors, and typists. The rest of the staff is composed of division editors and photographers who are paid by assignment. The divisions include Classes and Index, Student Life, Sports, Academics, Greeks, and Organizations.

The Buccaneer staff works each and every day to present the students and faculty with a book which they can be proud of.

One of the activities of the Buccaneer staff is the Miss Buccaneer Pageant, which was held October 10 in the Culp Center Auditorium.

Some members of the Buccaneer staff traveled to Ohio University in August for a seminar in yearbook production and coverage. The Buccaneer press run is 4500 copies. The yearbook operates from funds derived from student Activities Committee funds and advertising sales.

The East Tennessean is the student-oriented newspaper. Its aim is to report and interpret news events of specific interest to students, faculty, administrators, and alumni of the University. Area speakers, sports events, area entertainment, and public interest stories are some of the articles covered by the East Tennessean.

A staff of 23 students publish the paper each Tuesday and Friday during the academic year except for University holidays. The staff includes an editor appointed by the Student Publications Committee, and editors and assistant editors for each section. These sections are news, features, entertainment, and sports. A business manager, an advertising manager, copy editors, reporters, photographers, production and circulation managers, and an accountant complete the staff.

Part of this year's staff traveled to Washington, D.C. to attend the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi National Convention.

Approximately 4,000 copies of the East Tennessean are printed and distributed throughout the campus. Because there is no charge for the newspaper, it operates on a budget derived from advertising revenue and funds allocated by the Student Activities Committee.

The Mockingbird is another campus publication. This yearly journal reflects a rising level of literary and artistic creativity. The journal includes prose, poetry, art, photography, and other materials that reports and reflects cultural interest, literary and artistic interest. The editor of the Mockingbird is appointed by the Student Publications Committee.

All three publications follow ethical guidelines of professional journalism. They have the responsibilty to assure freedom of the press, independence, sincerity, truthfulness, accuracy, impartiality, fair play, and decency to each of their readers.

FRIENDSHIP, FUN, AND FELLOWSHIP

Many students find friendship, fun, and fellowship from different individual religious organizations. One of these active groups is Campus Crusade for Christ. This is an inter-denominational group that has been active on campus for nine years, but is a world-wide organization. The members are dedicated to reaching the world for Christ. The group's ministry is to meet the spiritual needs of the students by winning them to Christ, teaching and training them, and sending them out to be Christian leaders in their respective fields of influence.

The schedule of Crusade's activities in 1981-82 included weekly meetings, picnics, international dinners, and speakers such as Rusty Wright who lectured on "Dynamic Sex." Special occasions were always recognized by Crusade. The members sponsored a Halloween costume party, a dinner at the Parson's Table for Homecoming, and, to close out the semester, a Christmas Banquet.

The staff members for ETSU Campus Crusade for Christ are Earle Chiute, Ricky Stevens, Mary Beisman, and Jo Ann Nywall.

The Baptist Student Union is a denominational organization emphasizing participation of Baptist students but is open to all students. The BSU was organized in April, 1930; it has been in operation for 51 years.

Regular activities of BSU include weekly worship experiences, two luncheons per week, Bible studies, choir rehearsals, intramural activities, tutoring at Tyler Apartments, and frequent International dinners. Several of the members participate in fall and spring student conventions, seasonal retreats, plays, performance of singing and drama, and banquets. Through these activities, Christian growth is developed within the fellowship and expressed through state, national, and world-wide service opportunities.

An organization that is established to present to coaches and athletes and all whom they influence a place of Christian fellowship and a time for learning about Jesus Christ is the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. Approximately 150 members meet regularly on campus and are also involved in other activities. This year FCA week was held Sept. 28 through Oct. 2. The members of FCA helped a needy family for Thanksgiving and sponsored Truth in Concert in February.

Friendship, fun and fellowship,

The Episcopal denomination has a ministry for Episcopal students for the purpose of supporting each other in both life and work. The members also try to minister to others around them. Episcopal University Ministry has weekly meetings with the Catholic Ministry and both are significantly involved with the campus Oxfam Fast.

The Catholic Ministry has been in operation since 1965, but this marked the first year the group has operated from the Catholic Center. The purpose of this minstry is two-fold. First, it strengthens Christian witness, and secondly, it gives an opportunity for prayer and worship.

An average of 60 members are involved in the Catholic Ministry. Some of the activities included socials, retreats at Hot Springs, participation in the Week of Prayer, Oxfam hunger fight and other projects.

The Christian Student Fellowship is a nondenominational fellowship of believers in Jesus Christ. Weekly activities consist of a meal and Bible Study on Wednesday, an "Unmeal" to contribute to world hunger, and Sunday worship in the Student Center. The Campus House on the corner of Pine Street and University Parkway is the hub of C.S.F. activities: a home away from home, a place to study, share a meal, or relax. Yearly activities include retreats, camping, hiking, and special dinners.

FELLOWSHIP OF CHRISTIAN ATHLETES have many different activities throughout the year to help students grow closer together and closer to God.

The President, Vice President, Secretary-/Treasurer and Cabinet Secretaries comprise the executive branch of the Student Government Association. The executive branch is responsible for administrative functions such as budgeting, public relations, enforcing laws, and implementing all SGA projects and programs such as Homecoming and the book exchange. Executive officers are elected in April each year by the student body. The executive body is the part of SGA that works directly with President Ronald Beller and the administration.

Ever have the desire to be a Congressman? The SGA Senate is the legislative body of Student Government that proposes and passes new programs for consideration of the executive branch. Elected each April, the Senate meets weekly and its standing committees work throughout each week to serve the students.

Omicron Delta Kappa was established to recognize men and women who have attained a high standard of efficiency in collegiate activities and to inspire others to strive for conspicuous attainments along similar lines. It also helps to bring together the most representative men and women in all phases of collegiate life and thus create an organization which will help to mold the sentiment of the institution on questions of local and intercollegiate interest.

President's Pride is an honorary organization composed of ETSU students who have been selected for outstanding leadership and academic abilities. It is a highly selective organization; nominees for membership must pass a three-state program before becoming members. BUILDING GREEK RELATIONS

By: Eddie Shell
STAFF WRITER

The ETSU Panhellenic Council is the governing body for sororities on campus. They coordinate all sorority activities.

They sponsor several events during the year. Among them are the programs sponsored for Green women on such subjects as rape awareness. The Panhellenic Council also helps with the Muscular Dystrophy Association's Dance-a-thon in registration and the Special Olympics.

Each year, they, along with the Interfraternity Council, sponsor a Greek Week and an awards banquet. They also sponsor an intramural team each year.

At ETSU the job of governing the fraternities on campus belongs to the Interfraternity Council. Composed of members from each of the 12 fraternities on campus, they build relations between fraternities.

They start off the school year with an all campus kick off party that is a real success. Also the IFC coordinates the fraternity rush program.

SORORITY RUSH IS a time when Freshman and transfer students talk and socialize with Sorority members. HOMECOMING IS A time when Greeks are seen showing pride in ETSU.

With the belief that their sorority is more than a ritual, the sisters of Alpha Delta Pi believe it is a way of life. They have been at ETSU since 1955.

This year they combined with the Pikes to win Homecoming for the third year in a row. Another event that saw the ADPi's participating, was Lambda Chi's All Sing where they placed second in both large and small groups. They also placed second in Pike's Peak and Sigma Nu's Snake Day.

Their national philanthropy is Ronald McDonald Houses. Locally they assisted with the bloodmobile and the Girls Club.

Each year they sponsor Diamond Days. This is two days of events and competition between fraternities with the winners being announced at a large party. The Sigma Chi's won the event this year.

They also sponsor a penny drop for their philanthropies.

Their colors are azure blue and white. "Alphie," their lion, and the woodland violet are their symbols.

With colors of rose and green, the sisters of Delta Zeta have been at ETSU since 1956. The pink kilarney rose is their flower.

The Delta Zetas are set apart from the other sororities in that they have big brothers. Similar to fraternity little sisters, the big brothers help out when needed.

Nationally, the Delta Zetas support the Gallaudet College for the Deaf in Washington, D.C. Locally they support the V.A. Center with visits and the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

This year they worked with the Sigma Alpha Epsilons in Homecoming. Sigma Nu's Snake Day, along with Pike's Peak, saw their participation. Other events were Lambda Chi's All Sing and the MDA Dance-a-thon.

Annually, the Delta Zetas hold a Founder's Day and House Party. They also sponsor a big sister/little sister craft sale and a branding party.

They strive for the perfect ideals in womanhood, sisterhood, and friendship.

A SOUTHERN TRADITION

By Eddie Shell

Each spring the brothers of Kappa Alpha hold a formal dance known as Old South. Before the dance, the brothers have a parade attired in Confederate troop uniforms. The men present invitations to the Southern Belles, their dates for the dance.

The spirit of the South is exhibited for all the campus to see during the parade. Colors of crimson and old gold with the magnolia blossom and crimson rose serve as their symbols.

The Kappa Alphas are active in fraternity events. They participate in Alpha Delta Pi's Diamond Days, Lambda Chi's All Sing and intramurals. This year they combined with the Kappa Sigmas for Homecoming competition.

For their philanthropies, the Kappa Alphas support the Shriner's Crippled Children Hospitals. Local orphans and the Muscular Dystrophy Association also benefit from their services.

A QUEST FOR EXCELLENCE

By George Underwood
KAPsi Member

The Iota Zeta Chapter of Kappa Alpha Psi has been at ETSU since 1976. The national fraternity was established at Indiana University on January 5, 1911.

Kappa men wear the colors of crimson and cream with pride. The fraternity flower is the carnation and Kappas arenoted for their canes.

This year the Kappas plan to institute the Kappa League (Guide Right Program) in area high schools. The program will encourage young men to seek excellence through character strengthening.

Kappa men seek excellence in every endeavor they undertake. This year Kappas sponsored a Masquerade Party following the Homecoming game at the Marine Guard Armory. The Kappas also displayed a step show in the ballroom late in the fall. In early December, the Kappas combined efforts with SGA, IFC, UCPC, and the management of the Environmental Club, to celebrate the successful season of the Buc gridiron. During finals weekend, the Kappas conducted the highlight activity of the year with their Christmas Challenge Program. This was a program sponsored by the Kappas in which area businessmen and campus organizations were challenged to play Santa Claus for two underprivileged children from the Human Services Department. The organization took two children, bought them the present of their request and presented them their gifts at the party. This was a big success.

The remainder of the year anticipates a celebration party for the basketball team, a formal Red and White Ball in February, and attendance of the Kappa Alpha Psi Province Council Meeting in Chattanooga. Iota Zeta plans to attend their national convention in Detroit in August. Even though the academic year comes to an end, the Kappa's quest for excellence still continues.

LOVE, CHARITY, AND ESTEEM

Tau Kappa Epsilon Fraternity was founded January 10, 1899 at Illinois Wesleyan University, and has grown to one of the largest national social fraternities of today.

This past fall, the TKEs moved from their house on Watauga Street to a house on Maple Street nearer campus.

The TKEs support St. Jude as their national philanthropy. They also participate in the Miller can pick-up drives, Homecoming activities, and intramural sports. A Christmas party was held this year for underprivileged children of the area. TKE sponsored for the first time Fall Fest, two days of competition for fraternities and sororities.

Colophone

Volume 70 of the BUCCANEER Yearbook was published by the East Tennessee State University BUCCANEER Staff. Printing was accomplished in offset lithography by Josten's American Yearbook Company in their Clarksville, Tennessee plant.

Cover design consists of 160 point tempered board, smythsewn rounded and backed with headbands, on black, cover designs embossed and debossed with engraved metal-lay design. Endsheets were in snowflake design with 50% process yellow overlay.

Photography supplies were from the Photo Lab, ETSU and Larry Smith of University Relations. Black and White photography was supplied by staff photographers, contributing photographers, and the Photo Lab. Medical School pictures were supplied by Mr. David Brentz of Biomedical Communications, Quillen-Dishner College of Medicine. Color photography was printed in Knoxville by Michael Tucker. Student Portraits were by Empire Photography, Johnson City, TN.

Artwork and design were produced by the BUCCANEER staff. Background colors are a mixture of Tempo and Process Colors.

The BUCCANEER budget is derived from student maintenance fees, picture sitting fees, advertisments, and the Miss BUCCANEER Pageant.

For further information you may write; BUCCANEER, to the editor, East Tennessee State University, P.O. Box 23530-A, Johnson City, Tennessee 37614.

LEARNING THROUGH EXPERIENCE . . .

By Tammy Kooch
Staff Writer

All-nighters to meet deadlines, rushing to get copy written, pictures printed and layouts drawn, this was the Buccaneer yearbook for 1982.

Many of the staff members were new to annual publications, and the first two deadlines consisted of redrawing layouts and looking for non-existent copy the night before the pages had to be mailed. However, through teamwork and effort, the work got done and the number of finished pages steadily increased.

Each person on the staff faced his own problems. Photographers rushed frantically to cover all campus events in an attempt to capture the essence of ETSU on film.

Sectional editors struggled to fill pages with descriptions of ETSU 1982 so that years from now you can sit back and read the Buccaneer and recall a memorable time in your life.

The editor and assistant editor tried to organize schedules and cope with panicking staff members who were usually late for deadlines. They discovered that devotion is the key to producing a successful annual as problems with production and deadlines mounted ever higher.

The 1982 Buccaneer was printed as usual, and all the headaches and lost sleep are now just memories, but the friendships we made and the experiences we shared will be with us forever.

PICTURES ARE AN important part of an annual. Tammy Kooch, Carl Forester, Larry Smith, Lisa Adams, and John Flanigan look through the stacks for the "perfect shot" for each page.

BUCCANEER EDITOR, CARL Forester spent many hours surrounded by pictures and layouts as he worked toward the 1982 edition of the yearbook.

Editor's note . . .

To the Students of ETSU;

Most students do not realize what the BUCCANEER staff goes through to produce this book for them. We hope that the efforts of the staff will meet your satisfaction.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank those people who helped in the production of the 1982 BUCCANEER. I would like to especially thank those students who strived to meet deadlines, prepare layouts, write copy, schedule and print pictures, and somehow survive with some sanity. Following is a list of people who have made contributions to the 1982 BUCCANEER:

Anthony Advertising, Atlanta, Ga.
Dr. Murvin Perry, Faculty Advisor

I hope our efforts for you, the student, will please you. I realize that no matter how hard we try to provide quality coverage remaining in ethical limits of publication. The true test of the 1982 BUCCANEER will be in you, the student.

Sincerely Yours;

Carl Forester — Editor

RUSH WEEK takes a lot of time and preparation. Among activities during the week are skits such as this by Kappa Delta.

social, honor, and religions

Organizations and Greeks are a big part of campus life at ETSU. The fraternities and sororities help fill the social aspects of a student's life and if you have a special interest, there are clubs that range from the ETSU Folk Dancers to Campus Crusade for Christ.

Honor organizations for different majors provide an opportunity to meet others which share your interests, as well as to provide a link between students and professionals in their field.

For those who like to take an active part in the college, there is the East Tennessean, The Buccaneer and the Student Government Association. The East Tennessean and the Buccaneer provide an outlet for creativity while at the same time involving the student in many campus activities. Student Government provides an insight into politics and gives students a chance to make their views and those of the students they represent heard by the college administration.

Together these groups provide an opportunity for each student to participate in activities that can make college a more rewarding and enriching experience.

evaluation, renovation, and revision

Increased enrollment, higher tuition and the hiring of several key officials characterized 1981-82 at ETSU.

Some of the positions filled were: Dean of the College of Education, Dean of the College of Medicine, Dean of the College of Business, Director of Athletics, Director of Development, and Executive Assistant to the President.

The University received two large endowments during the year to provide for scholarships and additional funding for improvement of programs.

The first class of medical students accepted at the University graduated in the spring of 1982. Expansion of the Medical College came nearer to completion.

The administrative areas reporting to the Office of Academic Affairs reevaluated all programs and staffing. The College of Education and the School of Nursing and the School of Applied Science and Technology had team visitations and received accreditations. A pilot program was developed for an Honors College within the College of Arts and Sciences. The University's admissions policy was revised, as was the Faculty Handbook.

Renovations across campus were extensive as the University set new goals for the eighties and looked toward the nineties.
